LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

Department of Commerce,
Bureau of the Census,
Washington, D. C., July 22, 1942.

Sir: I transmit herewith volume II of the Sixteenth Census reports on the Census of Business. This volume presents statistics for the United States, for States, for cities of more than 5,000 population, and for counties. Some characteristics of wholesale trade are analyzed, including: Monthly employment, employment and pay roll for 1 week, size of establishments, operating expenses, credit business and receivables, classes of customers, commodities sold, legal form of organization, ownership groups, and age of establishment. The data are presented by types of operation and kinds of business.

The Census of Business, taken in 1940 in conformity with the Act providing for the fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses, approved June 18, 1929, covers operations during the calendar year 1939. The facts were collected in 1940 by a complete field canvass of all wholesale establishments in the continental United States.

The statistics were compiled under the supervision of Fred A. Gosnell, Chief Statistician for Business, and William A. Ruff, Assistant Chief Statistician. This volume was prepared by John Albright, in charge of Wholesale Trade, with the technical assistance of William P. McInerny and James T. Daly.

Respectfully,

J. C. Capt,
Director of the Census.

Hon. Jesse H. Jones,
Secretary of Commerce.

WHOLESALE TRADE: 1939

INTRODUCTION

This volume presents data on Wholesale Trade, a part of the 1939 Census of Business which was taken in conformity with an Act of Congress approved June 18, 1929. The Act provided, among other things, for a Census of Distribution (now called Business) covering the year 1929 and each succeeding tenth year thereafter in connection with decennial censuses. This is the second in the 10-year series. In addition, two censuses of business were conducted as emergency projects covering the years 1933 and 1935. Consequently, four year-periods or mileposts are now available for measuring wholesale trade: 1929, 1933, 1935, and 1939. Comparisons in this volume, however, are limited to the years 1939, 1935, and 1929.

The volume comprises summary statistics on wholesale trade for the country as a whole, for geographic divisions, States, counties, and for cities as well as such subject and special studies as employment by months and employment and pay roll for 1 week; business size; an analysis of operating expenses; cash-credit analysis of sales, receivables and inventories; sales by classes of customers; and commodity sales. The data, which were collected in 1940 in a complete field canvass conducted under the supervision of the regular field organization of the Bureau of the Census, cover operations of wholesale establishments throughout the United States during the year 1939. Information contained herein has been issued, for the most part, in a series of State and subject reports.

Unlike most surveys or sample studies in the field of wholesaling, census data represent complete coverage, hence are much wider in scope. Survey statistics frequently are confined to a limited part of the universe studied, whereas census data cover the entire field. Relatively few items are generally covered in surveys or sample studies, while in the census, data are presented on many phases of wholesaling such as number of establishments, sales, employment, pay roll, inventories, operating expenses, cash-credit business, and the like. Statistics derived from the census are basic and fundamental and provide a dependable base or bench mark for evaluating and projecting current data of a more limited nature.

Scope of wholesale trade.—The field of wholesale trade, as defined for census purposes, is somewhat broader than the usual conception of "wholesaler" or "wholesale merchant" as it includes manufacturer-owned sales outlets, petroleum bulk stations, agents, brokers, and assemblers of farm products, as well as the more conventional types of wholesalers. It includes all establishments or places of business primarily engaged in selling or acting as agents in selling (or buying) goods on a wholesale basis. The place of business may be a store or warehouse from which sales are made at wholesale, a sales or brokerage office, or part of an office that may be shared with others. Selling on a wholesale basis is selling primarily to retailers, dealers or distributors who buy the goods for resale, or selling to institutional and industrial users who purchase for business use rather than for the purpose of reselling the goods in the same form.

Wholesale and retail.—All establishments or places of business primarily engaged in selling (or buying) goods, either on their own account or for the account of others, fall within the scope of the Censuses of Wholesale and Retail Trades. Generally speaking, those engaged primarily in purveying goods to the ultimate consumer for consumption or utilization are classified as retail, while those that sell to dealers and distributors for resale, or to purchasers who buy for business use, are classified as wholesale.

Many business concerns do not fall clearly in either the retail or the wholesale division. Since it is impracticable, as a rule, to classify any single business establishment in more than one phase of the census, the major-portion-of-business or the 50-percent rule is followed for the most part. Establishments are placed in one classification or another according to their major activity. Consequently, those engaged in both retailing and wholesaling are considered as retailers or wholesalers in accordance with the bulk of their business. The number of cases in which it was necessary to apply the 50-percent rule was small relative to the total number of establishments. Border-line businesses of this type occur most frequently in the distribution of such commodities as automobiles, electrical appliances, hardware, farm implements, farm supplies, building materials, and gasoline. In studying distribution in these fields it is well to consider both the Wholesale and Retail Censuses. Similarly, in comparing 1939 data with those of previous censuses, it should be noted that for border-line cases a relatively small change in sales at retail or wholesale may cause the establishment to shift its classification from one phase of the census to another.

Table 7 of the wholesale series measures the volume of retail sales made by wholesalers. Conversely, table 14 of the retail series (summarized in accompanying table 7B) shows the amount of sales by retailers to other retailers.

Wholesale and manufactures.—Establishments engaged in both manufacturing and merchandising goods are included only in the Census of Manufactures if the major portion of the goods they sell is of their own make. Those engaged primarily in merchandising at wholesale, where manufacturing is secondary, are included in the Wholesale Census. Establishments engaged with about equal emphasis in manufacturing and merchandising, but in which merchandising predominated slightly, frequently submitted two reports—wholesale and manufactures. Sales branches operated, apart from plants, primarily for disposal at wholesale of the manufacturers' products are included in the Wholesale Census.

Wholesale and agricultural industries.—As wholesale trade includes all establishments engaged principally in selling or acting as agents in buying or selling goods to dealers, distributors, and to industrial users, assemblers of farm products are included. The term "assembler" as defined for census purposes covers establishments engaged primarily in the purchase of farm products or of fish and sea food at local producing points or in cities of producing areas. The emphasis is on buying and assembling of merchandise in quantities for economical handling and shipping, usually direct to shipping men, carlot merchants, or to industrial users. Many assemblers perform some agricultural activities such as spraying trees or picking fruits and vegetables, in addition to sorting, grading, packing, and marketing the goods. Concerns performing agricultural services incidental to marketing are included in the Wholesale Census, whereas farmers and agricultural concerns marketing their own products or performing marketing functions incidental to agriculture are omitted. A packing house, for example, operated by a farmer on his farm primarily for packing and marketing his own products is not included in the Wholesale Census; however, those operated by groups of farmers or by cooperative marketing associations, and commercial houses packing and selling goods on their own account or for others, are included.

Canvass based on establishments.—The Census of Wholesale Trade consists of an enumeration of all wholesale establishments or places of business in operation during a census year and covers their operations during the calendar year or in some cases the fiscal year ended nearest the calendar year. The census is conducted on an establishment basis in order to facilitate the canvass and make it possible to present data by areas—States, counties, and cities. A separate report is secured for each establishment regardless of whether or not it is owned and operated as a part of a chain or large business organization.

As the canvass is based upon establishments, itinerant peddlers, any wagon distributors, and other vendors without definite places of business recognizable as such to enumerators are omitted.

Questionnaires.—Four schedule forms were used in canvassing wholesale establishments in connection with the 1939 Census of Business (see Appendixes). Form 31 was a general form for reporting the conventional types of wholesalers, newer types of limited-service wholesalers, manufacturers' sales branches, manufacturers' sales offices, and commission merchants; Form 32 was a specialized questionnaire for use in reporting petroleum bulk stations and distributing terminals; Form 33 was a short form used for reporting agents and brokers; while Form 34 was designed especially for reporting assemblers and marketers of farm products. The forms were identical with respect to basic information on number of establishments, sales, personnel, pay roll, and inventories, but differed materially in the amount of information called for on sales by commodities, cash-credit business, and the analysis of employment and pay roll according to type of work performed.

Comparison with previous censuses.—The scope of the 1939 census is substantially the same as in 1935, a minor change being the addition in 1939 of establishments engaged primarily in coffee roasting or spice grinding and selling the products to distributors or to dealers. When comparing with 1929 reports it should be remembered that chain-store warehouses were not included as wholesale establishments in 1935 or 1939. Cream stations, on the other hand, engaged primarily in buying cream and produce were included in 1935 and 1939 but were omitted for the most part in 1929.

To facilitate comparisons, every effort has been made to keep the scope and classifications of the 1939 census comparable with those for previous years. It should be noted in evaluating changes and drawing conclusions, however, that an establishment is classified in each census according to its major operation; hence a small change in the sales practices of an establishment engaged with about equal emphasis in wholesaling and retailing or in wholesaling and manufacturing may cause a shift of the entire business from one census field to another. Also comparisons with 1935 and 1933 may be affected by incomplete coverage as the censuses for those years were on a voluntary basis and in some localities reports were not received for all places of business.

Basic classifications.—The findings of the 1939 Wholesale Census are presented in three basic classifications: (1) Areas—geographic divisions, States, cities, and counties; (2) types of operation—according to the character of the establishment and the functions performed; and (3) kinds of business—based upon commodities or lines of merchandise handled and trade designation.

The first measures the geographic distribution of wholesale trade in terms of location of the establishment from which sales are made—not according to location of customers who purchase the goods.

As a wholesale census is somewhat broader than the usual conception of "wholesaler" or "wholesale merchant," the second classification, types of operation, is more fundamental than the first. It groups establishments according to functions performed or methods of operation into more or less homogeneous groupings, as service wholesalers, limited-function wholesalers, manufacturers' sales branches, manufacturers' sales offices, and the like.

The third grouping brings together establishments engaged primarily in handling the same or similar lines of merchandise such as drugs, electrical goods, hardware, groceries, and the like. It is essential in the wholesale census to distinguish the various types of operation in a given trade or kind of business as some types frequently sell to others. For example, food brokers may sell to grocery wholesalers; grain brokers may sell to grain merchants; and agricultural cooperatives frequently sell to merchants and jobbers. Kind-of-business data for the various types of operation are kept separate in the census in order to avoid what would result in considerable duplication in totals.

When making comparisons between census years, it should be remembered that the type-of-operation business rule is applied each census year in classifying by type and kind. Consequently, establishments performing functions that overlap type classifications (such as wholesale merchant-wagon distributor, wholesale merchant-commission merchant, and the like) and those that overlap trades (groceries and tobacco, drugs and liquor, etc.) may shift in classification from one census to another. The effect of such shifts varies in different areas depending upon the prevalence of such dual activities, but in most areas and for the United States as a whole they account for such a small volume of business that they have little influence on the totals.

CHAPTER I.—GENERAL ANALYSIS OF DATA

Establishments and sales.—There were 200,573 wholesale establishments in the continental United States in 1939. These establishments reported a volume of business during the year hereinafter referred to as "sales" or "net sales" amounting to $55,265,640,000.

In 1935, the latest year covered by a similar census of wholesale trade, there were 176,756 establishments with sales for the year totaling $42,802,913,000; thus there were 13.5 percent more establishments in 1939 than in 1935, with an increase in sales of 29.1 percent. Compared with 1929, when there were 168,820 establishments with sales of $66,983,024,000, the number of places of business was up 18.8 percent but dollar sales were off 17.5 percent. It should be noted when comparing dollar figures for one census year with another that no adjustments are made for changes in price levels or for differences in the purchasing power of the dollar. Sales are in terms of dollar amounts for each year.

Employment and pay roll.—The 200,573 wholesale establishments in 1939 engaged the services of 1,695,646 persons, of whom 133,698 were active proprietors or firm members of unincorporated businesses and 1,561,948 were employees on a salary or wage basis. Total pay roll of these 1,561,948 employees on a salary or wage basis amounted to $2,624,203,000, or an average of $1,680 each.

In the 10-year period, 1929 to 1939, the total number of persons engaged by wholesale establishments increased from 1,601,266 to 1,695,646, or 5.9 percent. It is interesting to note that this increase is slightly less than the 7.2 percent gain in population during the decade 1930 to 1940.

The number of proprietors was somewhat larger in 1939 than in previous censuses due in part to the fact that operators of commission bulk stations in the petroleum business were included in this classification in the latest census but not for previous years. Subtracting the 17,486 proprietors and firm members of this type for 1939, a gain of 28.0 percent is noted over 1929, while as stated above, the corresponding increase in establishments was 18.8 percent. Thus the number of active proprietors shows a relative increase as compared with the number of establishments.

Average annual earnings per employee on a salary or wage basis decreased from $1,961 in 1929 to $1,604 in 1935, then rose again to $1,680 in 1939.

Comparisons with 1935 are qualified by the fact that employment and pay-roll data for 6,436 commission bulk stations in the petroleum trade were not included in that year. It is estimated that these 6,436 stations employed 17,164 persons with a total pay roll of $27,221,000.

Operating expenses.—Total operating expenses as defined for census purposes include pay roll and other expenses incurred in running the business but not the cost of goods sold. Total expenses are not the same as gross margin as no allowances are made for net profit, compensation of active proprietors and firm members of unincorporated businesses, or interest and amortization on investments. Operating expenses thus defined amounted to $5,518,456,000 in 1939, or 10.0 percent of sales. Expressed as a percentage of sales they rose from 9.0 in 1929 to 9.7 in 1935, and to 10.0 in 1939. Increases in total expenses were due in part to the rise in pay roll from 4.42 percent of sales in 1929 to 4.72 percent in 1935, and to 4.75 percent in 1939.

Stocks.—The cost value of goods on hand for sale at the end of 1939 amounted to $3,872,385,000, or 7.0 percent of sales during the year. Inventories at the end of 1939 were slightly lower compared with sales than they were in either 1929 or 1935—7.0 percent for 1939 compared with 7.3 percent in 1935, and 7.5 percent in 1929, possibly indicating that wholesalers are now able to operate on a smaller inventory per dollar of sales.

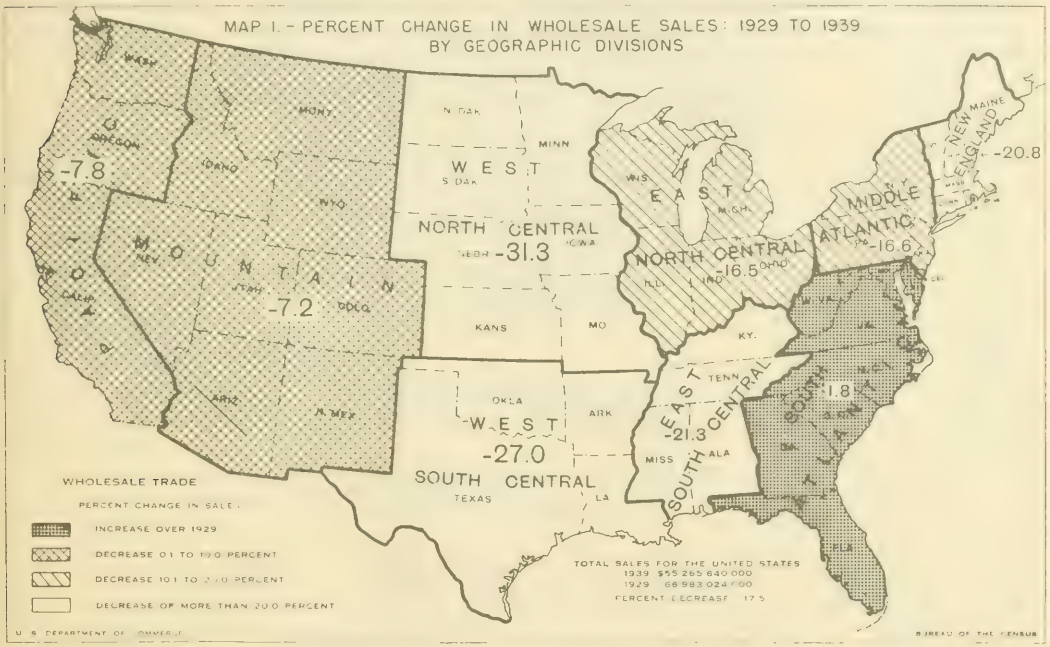
Geographic distribution of wholesale trade.—Wholesale trade as measured by the census for a State, city, or county represents the total business of all wholesale establishments located within the area. The geographic measurement is based on "location of establishment" from which the business is conducted rather than according to the location of the purchaser or customer. For example, sales of a salesman covering an Ohio territory but with headquarters in a wholesale establishment at Pittsburgh would be credited to Pittsburgh.

The South Atlantic, Mountain, and Pacific groups of States show up most favorably when 1939 sales are compared with 1929. Although the dollar volume for the country as a whole was off 17.5 percent in the decade, the South Atlantic Division enjoyed an increase of 1.8 percent. Sales in the Mountain Division were back to 92.8 percent and in the Pacific to 92.2 percent of their respective 1929 levels. New England and the agricultural States of the Midwest lagged in recovery with the West North Central Division still 31.3 percent below 1929.



Geographic divisions.—Table B measures sales of wholesale establishments by geographic divisions and shows the percentage change in dollar volume, without adjustments for changes in the price level, in the decade 1929 to 1939. The Middle Atlantic Division, comprised of New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, accounted for 34.2 percent of the total volume of wholesale trade in 1939. Next in importance was the East North Central Division, consisting of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, and Wisconsin, with 20.3 percent of the total; followed by the West North Central States with 10.5 percent. Considered together establishments located in these three divisions accounted for 65.0 percent of the wholesale trade of the country.

States.—A summary of wholesale trade by geographic divisions and States for 1939 is given in table 1 and comparative data for 1939, 1935, and 1929 appear in the Summary of Business Data. New York State contributed 26.3 percent of the business of all establishments in the United States in 1939, compared with 25.0 percent in 1929. Illinois was second with 9.0 percent of the total in 1939, slightly less than its 10.0 percent in 1929.

California stepped up from number four position in 1929 to number three in 1939 when its percentage of the total business increased from 6.1 to 6.9. Pennsylvania, on the other hand, dropped back from number three to number four position when its portion of the total dropped from 6.9 to 6.1 percent.

States comparing most favorably with their respective 1929 sales are, Nevada with a 69.5 percent increase; Delaware, a gain of 33.4 percent; New Mexico, 24.9 percent; North Carolina, 19.6 percent; Florida, 18.4 percent; and New Jersey, 14.9 percent. The District of Columbia gained 55.7 percent in dollar volume. On the other extreme are found Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Mississippi, and North Dakota, each with a drop of 35 percent or more in dollar volume.

Cities.—That wholesale trade is a big city phenomenon is clearly indicated in chart I and in table C which show the unusually high concentration of wholesale trade in the larger population centers. More than one-half (52.4 percent) of all wholesale trade in the United States in 1939 was transacted by establishments located in the 13 cities with a population of more than 500,000 and in the District of Columbia. This business was conducted by 61,732 establishments or 36.8 percent of the total. Thus it is seen that the average annual sales volume of establishments in the big cities is much larger than in the smaller cities and rural areas. It is interesting to note that while the 13 largest cities together with the District of Columbia contributed 52.4 percent of the wholesale trade they contained only 17.9 percent of the country's population.

When the 91 cities with more than 100,000 population and the District of Columbia are considered together, it is noted that they accounted for three-fourths (75.2 percent) of all wholesale trade, but less than one-half (47.9 percent) of the wholesale establishments. These 92 population centers, however, contributed only 28.9 percent to the country's population in 1940.

The 105 cities of 50,000 to 100,000 population show about the same percentage of establishments (5.7 percent) and of wholesale sales (5.2 percent) as they do in population (5.5 percent). Cities with less than 50,000 population together with rural areas accounted for only 19.6 percent of sales but 65.6 percent of the population.

As a partial explanation of the small portion of wholesale trade in smaller cities and rural communities, it should be pointed out that a large number of assemblers and country buyers of farm products which operate on a relatively small scale are found in these areas. In small communities are also found large numbers of [illegible] stations and petroleum bulk stations, establishments that are relatively small from the standpoint of dollar volume of business.

New York City alone accounts for almost one-fourth (23.4 percent) of all wholesale trade in the United States, while Chicago is second with 7.4 percent and Boston third with 4.0 percent. The three cities combined contributed over one-third of the wholesale business of the country in 1939 but only 8.8 percent of the population in 1940.

Although wholesale trade is concentrated in the larger cities, correlation between sales and population is not perfect. New York City and Chicago rank first and second, respectively, in wholesale trade and population, but Boston which is third in wholesale trade is ninth in population, and San Francisco which is twelfth in population ranks fifth in wholesale trade. Many cities, on the other hand, rank lower as wholesale centers than they do in population.

When considered as a group, the 13 cities with more than 500,000 population and the District of Columbia show an increase in sales in 1939 over 1935 of 31.2 percent compared with an increase of 29.1 percent for the country as a whole; or a slightly larger concentration in the big cities in 1939 than in 1935. Wholesale trade for the 78 cities with 100,000 to 500,000 population increased 27.3 percent or slightly less than the national average. The largest percentage gain in business is noted for cities of 50,000 to 100,000 population (33.3 percent), while a gain of only 25.0 percent was recorded by cities of less than 50,000 population and rural areas.

Wholesale trade by types of operation.—Totals for wholesale trade are important and interesting but for specific application these totals must be broken down by various classifications. Wholesale trade as defined for census purposes is somewhat broader than the usual conception as it includes manufacturer-owned sales outlets, petroleum bulk stations and distributing terminals, agents, brokers, and assemblers of farm products in addition to the more conventional types of distributors. All establishments are divided into six more or less homogeneous groups according to type of operation or nature of functions performed. Four of these groups are further subdivided as explained in chapter III. Data on the number of establishments, sales, expenses, personnel, pay roll, and inventories are presented for each type in table 1.

Of all classes of establishments, service and limited-function wholesalers—wholesalers of the more conventional types plus merchants engaged primarily in foreign trade—are most important both in number of establishments and volume of business. They maintained 101,627 establishments, or 50.7 percent of the total, doing $23,641,924,000 in business, or 42.8 percent of the total dollar volume. Included in the 101,627 establishments are 91,323 wholesale merchants of the more common type who take title to the goods they buy and sell and who are largely independent in ownership; 703 voluntary group wholesalers; 631 converters (merchants in the textile trade); 2,744 merchants engaged primarily in foreign trade, 586 of whom were exporters and 2,158 importers; 1,471 industrial distributors; 1,198 cash-and-carry wholesalers; 937 drop shippers or desk jobbers; 2,395 wagon distributors and 222 cooperative warehouses. The importance of each of these different types of operation may be determined from table 1.

Manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks)—sales establishments operated by manufacturers, apart from plants, primarily for warehousing and marketing their products—numbered 12,977 and accounted for $8,846,940,000 in sales or 16.0 percent of the total volume. Manufacturers' sales offices (without stocks), similar to manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks) except that they neither carry stocks nor warehousing [illegible] numbered 5,119 and reported sales of $4,679,262,000 which was 8.5 percent of the total. Petroleum bulk stations and distributing terminals were second to service and limited-function wholesalers in number of establishments, 30,825, but they accounted for only 6.9 percent of total sales; agents and brokers with 20,903 places of business were second from the standpoint of sales, contributing 20.3 percent of the total; and assemblers (mainly farm products) numbered 29,122 with 5.5 percent of total sales.

Compared with 1929, manufacturers' sales branches and offices combined and petroleum bulk stations increased their portion of the total dollar volume of business, while service and limited-function wholesalers, agents and brokers, and assemblers decreased slightly.

[1] Sales include taxes.

Wholesale trade by kinds of business.—In addition to being classified according to functional type, each wholesale establishment is also classified by kind of business, on the basis of the chief line or lines of merchandise in which it deals or according to its trade designation. On this basis of classification, all wholesale establishments are divided into 28 major kind-of-business groups which are further subdivided into 172 detailed kinds of business as described in the Appendix. In presenting the results on wholesale trade, the data are analyzed first by types of operation, then for each of the major type groups by kinds of business. Generally speaking, data for the major type groups are not combined in census reports to obtain totals by kinds of business. An exception to this rule is found in table 2, Monthly Employment and Sex of Employees.

Table 1 for the United States presents number of establishments, sales, operating expenses, personnel, pay roll, and inventories for each of the major type groups by kinds of business in detail, while table 1A analyzes the detailed types of operation by kinds of business.

The importance of breaking down wholesale establishments into detailed kind-of-business classifications becomes apparent as soon as one attempts to make specific use of the figures. Business men, trade associations; administrative agencies, economists, and statisticians may thus determine the total number of wholesale establishments specializing in a given line of business, their net sales, operating expenses, number of employees, pay roll, stocks on hand, and other characteristics. Detailed figures also enable a wholesaler in a given line of business to compare his accomplishments with other wholesalers operating in a similar fashion.

CHART III SALES OF SERVICE AND LIMITED FUNCTION WHOLESALERS BY KINDS OF BUSINESS

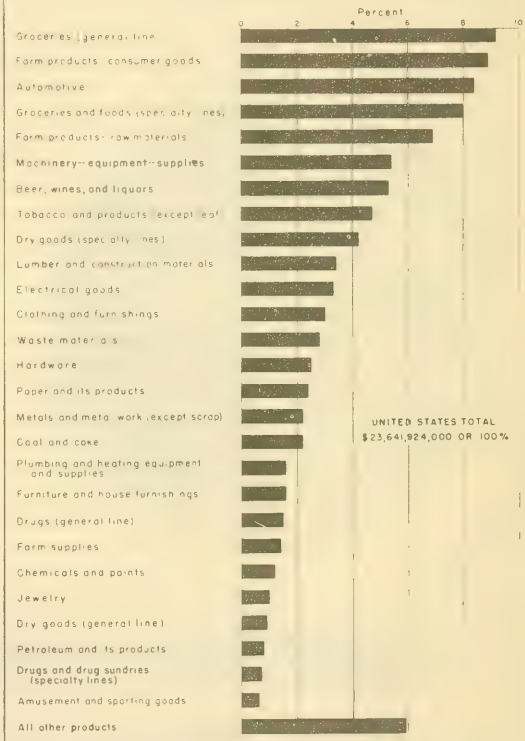

Table F measures in terms of dollar volume of sales the importance of the kind-of-business groups under each of the major types of operation. Groceries represent the most important kind of business for service and limited-function wholesalers and also for manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks). Metals and metalwork was highest for manufacturers' sales offices (without stocks), with 35.2 percent of the total volume; while farm products (raw materials) ranked first both under agents and brokers and under assemblers—26.4 percent and 58.6 percent, respectively.

CHAPTER II.—SOME CHARACTERISTICS OF WHOLESALE TRADE

This chapter deals with some special characteristics of wholesale trade. Inasmuch as most of the subjects are treated in detail in separate subject reports, only brief summaries are given here.

Employment and pay roll.—Wholesale trade as a source of employment is depicted in tables 2 and 3, tables which are also available in a separate subject report. Table 2 measures seasonal variation in employment in the various kinds of business of wholesale trade. Data on the number of active proprietors and firm members of unincorporated businesses and on the number of [illegible] employers are also given. Table 3 presents statistics on employment and pay roll of wholesale establishments for 1 week of 1939, by occupational groups. It provides information for determining earnings for 1 week, of the following classes of employees: Office and clerical, inside selling, outside selling, warehouse, and other employees.

Monthly employment.—The number of paid employees of wholesale establishments in the United States in 1939 ranged from a low of 1,512,879 in February to a high of 1,634,754 in October, with an average for the year of 1,561,948. Considered seasonally, the number dropped off slightly from January to February, then rose consistently month after month from March through October. Small decreases were again noted in November and December. The total net gain from February through October numbered 121,875 or 7.8 percent of the annual average. The largest increase for any 2 consecutive months was from July to August, with a net gain of 33,653; second in this respect was September–October with 30,541. Each of the first 7 months of the year—January through July was slightly below average but the last five were above. October was 4.7 percent above the annual average while February was 3.1 percent below. Thus it is seen that, generally speaking, wholesale trade is characterized by regularity in employment.

Although the average number of employees in 1939 was 22.2 percent above 1935, monthly trends for the 2 years were fairly consistent. October was high for both census years, while March was low in 1935 compared with February in 1939. In each year there was a consistent, although small, rise from the low month through October. January through July of each year was below average while August through December was above. Seasonal variations were slightly more pronounced in 1939 than in the earlier census year the range being from a low of 96.9 to a high of 104.7 in 1939 compared with 98.1 and 104.0 in 1935.

Sex of employees.—Each wholesale establishment was asked to report separately the number of male and female employees for one pay period in October 1939. For purposes of presenting the results the October ratio has been applied to the annual average, thus giving the average number of men and women employed by wholesale establishments. As might be expected, the number of males predominated heavily with 1,260,886 or 80.7 percent of the total. It is interesting to note, however, that women numbered 1 out of every 5 persons engaged in wholesale trade. The sex ratio varied with the kind of business from a low of 5.3 percent women in the petroleum trade to 44.5 percent in the specialty-line drug business. Girls and women accounted for more than one-third of all employees in the amusement and sporting goods, drugs and drug sundries (specialty lines), and jewelry trades. They numbered approximately 1 out of 4 in the chemicals and paints, drugs (general line), dry goods, electrical goods, furniture and housefurnishings, and paper trades. Only in the petroleum business did they account for less than 10 percent of total employment.

The ratio of women to the total number of employees varied from a low of 7.2 percent, or 1 of 14 in Nevada, to a high of 24.9 percent, or 1 of 4 in New York. Girls and women accounted for less than 10 percent of the total in North Dakota, Wyoming, and Nevada, while on the other extreme they represented 20 percent or more in nine States: Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Missouri, Virginia, North Carolina, Washington, Oregon, and California.

Compared with 1935, the female ratio increased in seven of the nine geographic divisions, exceptions being in the East and West South Central sections. Considered by States, the female ratio increased in 29 of the 48 States and also in the District of Columbia, but decreased in 18 States. Wisconsin remained the same for the 2 years.

Employment and pay roll for 1 week.—Each establishment was asked to report in connection with the 1939 census the actual employment and pay roll for the week ended October 21, 1939, or in the case of highly seasonal businesses for a week of normal employment during the active season. Respondents were requested to classify employees during the week by occupational groups—as executives, office and clerical employees, salesmen, warehousemen, etc.—and to report the number and pay roll for the week of full-time and part-time employees separately for each classification.

The classification of employees by occupational groups was not always clear-cut nor absolute. The duties of many workers are varied and often overlap occupational groupings. Respondents were instructed to classify each employee according to the group that consumed the major portion of his time during the week and to enter the entire week's pay roll under the same classification; hence an employee is included in one group only.

Another difficulty in obtaining uniformity in reporting was that the occupational groups did not provide to the same degree in different types of operation and kinds of business a natural basis for classifying employees. The majority (78.8 percent) of the personnel of assemblers of farm products, for example, was reported as "other." Slightly more than one-third (35.8 percent) of employees of agents and brokers and one-fourth (27.1 percent) of those of petroleum bulk stations and terminals were considered as belonging in the miscellaneous group. In view of these difficulties no totals are presented in the tables for all types of operation combined.

The information on employment and pay roll for the week does not include all establishments having paid employees. Some respondents failed to answer the inquiry and in other cases, particularly if only one or two persons were engaged, the information for the week had to be deleted from tabulations because of its unsatisfactory character. The table indicates for each classification the number and sales of the establishments analyzed. A measure of coverage may be had by comparing establishments and sales as given in table 3 with corresponding columns of table 1, as the latter table includes all wholesale establishments.

Another measure of coverage in table 3 is found in the comparison of the total number of full-time and part-time combined, table 3, with the average number of employees as shown in table 1. For nearly all classifications the analysis is more than 75 percent complete.

All other	172,806	21.3	3,951,264	15.0

Employment in wholesale trade is characteristically full-time. Of the 846,897 employees of service and limited-function wholesalers that were reported for the week, 809,476, or 95.6 percent, were engaged the full number of hours of the workweek. Less than 5 percent were engaged only part time. Part-time employment was even smaller for manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks) and manufacturers' sales offices (without stocks), representing only 3.1 percent and 2.1 percent of the total, respectively. As might be expected, part-time employment is highest for assemblers of farm products with 33.8 percent, or 1 of 3, followed by agents and brokers with 16.5 percent, or 1 of 6 employees. Petroleum bulk stations and terminals provided full-time employment for 94.8 percent of their personnel.

Further evidence of the importance of full-time employment is found in the analysis of pay roll. Only in the case of assemblers of farm products did the salaries and wages of part-time employees amount to more than 5 percent of total pay roll. For this type of operation, part-time employees accounted for 33.8 percent of the total number and received 23.3 percent of all salaries and wages. While they accounted for 16.5 percent of all employees of agents and brokers, they received only 4.6 percent of the pay roll.

Employment and pay-roll data were also obtained in connection with the 1935 census for 1 week of that year—the week ended October 26, for the most part; hence 1939 and 1935 comparisons can be made. Instructions to respondents regarding the division of employees into full-time and part-time differed slightly between the two census years but the distinction seems to have had little effect upon reporting, possibly because part-time employment is not a significant factor in most wholesale trades. Part-time employees were defined for purposes of the 1939 census as "those who work less hours than the full workweek"; all others were considered as full-time. In 1935, part-time was defined as "persons employed less than 4 hours per day or for less than three full days per week." Full-time were those "regularly engaged for work for four or more hours per day or for more than three full days per week."

In spite of the slight change in definition of terms which would tend to cause more employees to be reported as part-time in 1939, full-time, for service and limited-function wholesalers, increased from 93.0 percent of the total number in 1935 to 95.6 percent in 1939. Other types of operation for which comparisons can be made show a slight relative drop in full-time employment, but in each case the decline was less than 2 percent.

Average weekly wages.—Except for executives and salaried corporation officers who normally are not paid on a weekly or biweekly basis, sales personnel, particularly outside salesmen, constitute the highest paid group. Outside selling employees of service and limited-function wholesalers received $40.85 during the week, on the average. Those employed by manufacturers' sales branches received $51.47, and those by manufacturers' sales offices $65.24.

Office and clerical employees as a rule are higher paid than warehousemen or "other" employees. As might be expected, wages of office employees, because of the variety of their duties, differ greatly by types of operation. In general, the various classes of employees of manufacturers' sales offices (without stocks) and of manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks) are higher paid than those of other types of operation. Agents and brokers and petroleum bulk stations pay their office employees more on the average than do service and limited-function wholesalers, while assemblers of farm products pay slightly less.

As shown in the accompanying text table L, average weekly wages for full-time employees were generally higher in 1939 than in 1935. In the case of service and limited-function wholesalers, average pay of office and clerical employees increased from $24.67 to $26.24 per week; inside salesmen from $27.90 to $29.74; outside salesmen from $38.52 to $40.85; and of warehousemen from $20.95 to $23.04. Average pay of "other" employees increased from $20.66 in 1935 to $22.87 in 1939.

Sales-size groups.—Wholesale merchants and, for trades in which they appear, industrial distributors are analyzed by sales-size groups in table 4. These two types of operation maintained 92,794 places of business in the United States in 1939. Of this number 3,154, or 3.4 percent, each reported sales of a million dollars or more during the year. Total sales of these million-dollar houses amounted to $7,817,324,000, which was 40.3 percent of the dollar volume for all wholesale merchants and industrial distributors. In contrast 40,484 establishments—more than two-fifths of the total number—each reported sales of less than $50,000 for the year, but their combined total dollar volume represented only 4.5 percent of total net sales. The million-dollar establishments provided employment for 212,700 persons, 23.3 percent of the total, while personnel of the less-than-$50,000 establishments numbered 120,245, or 13.2 percent of the total.

WHOLESALE MERCHANTS AND INDUSTRIAL DISTRIBUTORS: 1939

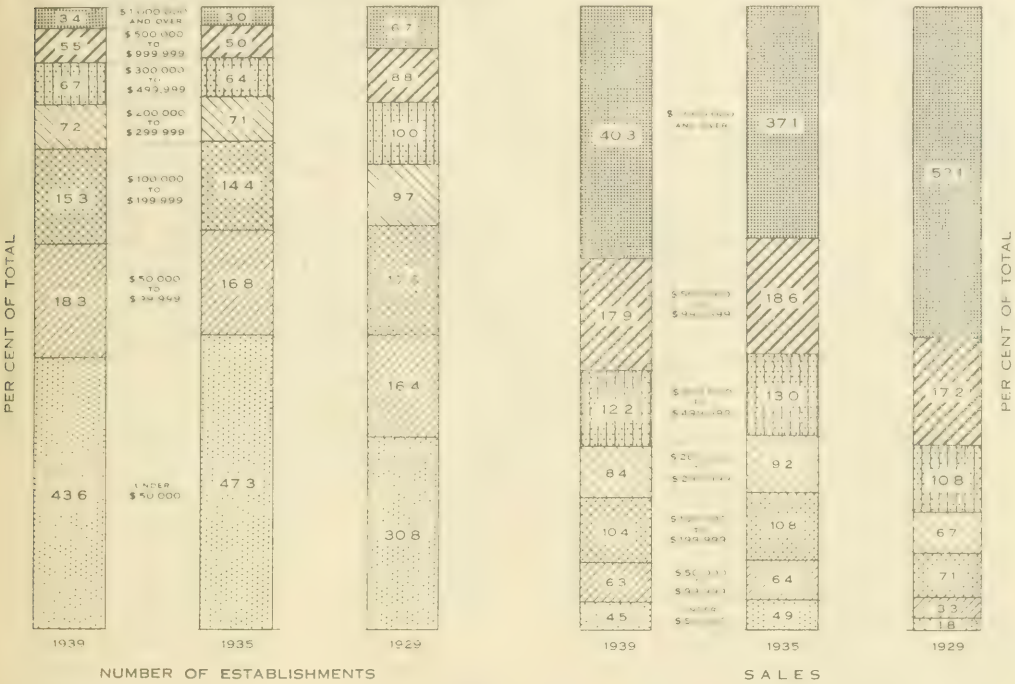
CHART VII.– NUMBER OF ESTABLISHMENTS AND SALES, BY BUSINESS-SIZE GROUPS: 1939, 1935, AND 1929



Stated differently, the million-dollar establishments contributed only 3.4 percent of the number of houses, but 40.3 percent of sales, and 23.3 percent of the personnel; while the less-than-$50,000 accounted for 43.6 percent of the houses, but only 4.5 percent of sales and 13.2 percent of the personnel.

Houses with sales of $500,000–$999,999 accounted for 5.5 percent of the total number of establishments, contributed 17.9 percent of sales, and employed 15.5 percent of the total personnel; those with sales of $300,000–$499,999 contributed 6.7 percent of the establishments, 12.2 percent of sales, and 12.4 percent of personnel; and those in the $100,000–$299,999 bracket, 22.5 percent of the establishments, 18.8 percent of sales, and 24.4 percent of the personnel.

Comparative summary by size: 1939, 1935, and 1929. Chart VII compares number of establishments and sales by size brackets for the years 1939, 1935, and 1929. The total number of wholesale merchants and industrial distributors increased from 76,590 in 1929 to 79,333 in 1935, and to 92,794 in the most recent census. The number of establishments in the upper brackets—brackets with the larger dollar volume of sales—decreased between 1929 and 1935, and then increased from 1935 to 1939. For example, 6.7 percent of all houses were in the million-dollar class in 1929, compared with only 3.0 percent in 1935 and 3.4 percent in 1939. Likewise, the number with sales from $500,000–$999,999 dropped from 8.8 percent of the total in 1929 to 5.0 percent in 1935 and then rose to 5.5 percent in 1939. The number of establishments with sales of less than $50,000, on the other hand, increased in terms of the total from 30.8 percent in the first census to 47.3 percent in 1935, then decreased to 43.6 percent in 1939.

In evaluating shifts among size brackets from one census to another it should be remembered that no account is taken here of changes in the general price level. Sales are in terms of the dollar volume and each establishment is classified by size according to its business during the census year.

Although establishments in the million-dollar-and-over size bracket accounted for a very large portion of the total dollar volume, this portion appears not to have increased during the past decade. Comparisons are qualified by the fact that allowances cannot be made for changes in the price level, which resulted in many establishments shifting from one size bracket to another, but the portion of total sales accounted for by the million-dollar houses dropped from 53.1 percent in 1929 to 37.1 percent in 1935, then rose to 40.3 percent. Sales for the $500,000–$999,999 bracket increased from 17.2 percent of the total dollar volume in 1929 to 18.6 percent in 1935, and then dropped to 17.9 percent in 1939. On the other extreme, sales of the less-than-$50,000 houses increased from 1.8 percent of the total in 1929 to 4.9 percent in 1935, then dropped to 4.5 percent in 1939.

Expense ratio decreases as size increases.—One of the most significant analyses made possible by table 4 is a study of total operating expenses in relation to dollar volume of sales. In general, operating expenses per dollar of sales decrease as annual sales increase. As shown in the accompanying table, total expenses of the under-$50,000 houses amounted to 21.7 percent of sales, the highest ratio of all size brackets in 1939. From the high of 21.7 percent the expense ratio decreased consistently with an increase in size to 8.9 percent for the $2,000,000-and-over establishments. Expenses for all size brackets averaged 13.7 percent of sales.

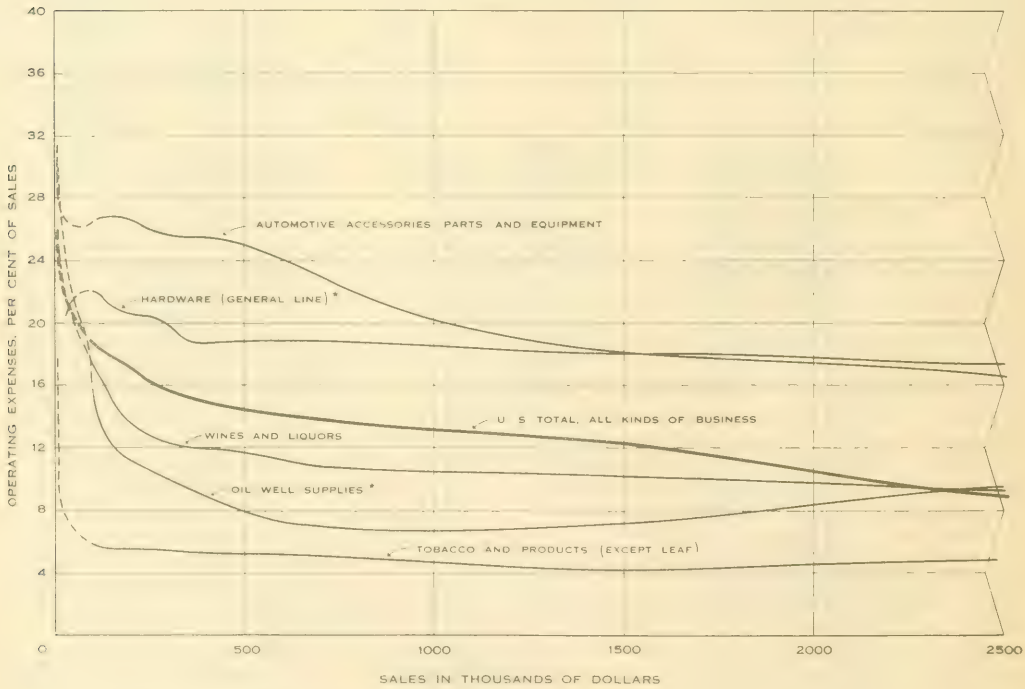
CHART VIII.—RATIO OF OPERATING EXPENSES TO NET SALES, BY BUSINESS-SIZE GROUPS



good for all kinds of business. In the tobacco trade, for example, the lowest expense ratio appears in the $1,000,000–$1,999,999 bracket and for oil-well supply houses, the $500,000–$999,999 bracket is lowest. Eliminating establishments with sales of less than $50,000, a study of table 4 for the country as a whole shows that of the 172 kinds of business into which all wholesale merchants and industrial distributors are classified, expense ratios for 85 decline rather consistently as size increases. For 52 kinds of business the ratio seems indifferent to size and for 18 trades the lowest ratio is found in one of the medium-size brackets. Due to the small number of establishments involved, no definite trend could be determined for 17 kinds of business.

In studying the influence of size upon costs, it should be remembered that other factors affect expenses such as location of establishment, lines of merchandise handled, services performed, customers served, sales area covered, credit policy, legal form of organization, and the like. Effects of these various factors may tend to offset one another in trades where the number of establishments is large. The influence of any one or more of them may become apparent, however, in individual instances. For example, operating expenses of establishments in the smallest size bracket frequently are lower per dollar of sales than for those with a slightly larger dollar volume of business. This may be explained in part by the inclusion of a relatively large number of proprietor-owned establishments in the smaller brackets, as operating expenses do not include allowances for the services of active proprietors of unincorporated businesses.

Analysis of operating expenses.—Table 5 analyzes total operating expenses by functional divisions for the various kinds of business into which wholesale merchants and industrial distributors are classified. Total expenses for each kind of business are analyzed to show administrative, selling, delivery, warehouse, occupancy, and "other" expenses separately. The analysis is limited to establishments whose sales during 1939 amounted to $100,000 or more.

As an aid to an understanding of costs by size of house, total expenses for a number of kinds of business are analyzed by size brackets. For 28 kinds of business the following size-bracket analysis is given:

$100,000–$199,999.
$200,000–$299,999.
$300,000–$499,999.
$500,000–$999,999.
$1,000,000–$1,999,999.
$2,000,000 or more.

For other trades it was necessary to telescope size brackets or to eliminate the size analysis entirely.

Tobacco trade analyzed.—An analysis of expenses carries significance when considered in connection with a given kind of business. To illustrate the use of table 5, the tobacco trade is selected and the results are presented graphically in chart IX. Of the 1,730 tobacco wholesalers with sales for the year 1939 amounting to $100,000 or more, 1,090 analyzed their expenses to show administrative, selling, delivery, occupancy, warehouse, and "other" expenses separately. Sales of these 1,090 establishments totaled $723,441,000 for the year, and their operating expenses amounted to $35,783,596, or 4.9 percent of sales. Stated differently, it cost tobacco distributors $4.90, on the average, to market a representative bill of goods amounting to $100. The $4.90 was divided as follows: $1.30 for administrative, $1.60 for selling, 70 cents for delivery, 40 cents for warehousing, 60 cents for occupancy charges, and 30 cents to cover miscellaneous expenses.

The 1,090 tobacco wholesalers were classified by size groups as follows: 61 with sales of $2,000,000 and over; 128 in the second size bracket ($1,000,000–$1,999,999); 266 in the third ($500,000–$999,999); 204 in the fourth ($300,000–$499,999); 202 in the fifth ($200,000–$299,999); and 229 in the $100,000–$199,999 group. The expense ratio was lowest, 4.4 percent, in the $1,000,000–$1,999,999 bracket, and highest, 6.1 percent, in the $100,000–$199,999 group. Except for the largest size bracket, expenses decreased with an increase in size. Principal economies resulting from larger size are found in lower administrative, selling, delivery, and occupancy expenses. Warehousing and miscellaneous expenses remained fairly constant for all size brackets. Expenses per dollar of sales were higher for the $2,000,000-and-over bracket than in the $1,000,000–$1,999,999 group. The increase appeared for the most part in selling costs which rose from $1.40 to $1.70 per $100 of sales. Selling expenses consist for the most part of salesmen's salaries and advertising.

Cash-credit analysis of sales.—In table 6A, 1939 sales of service and limited-function wholesalers, and of manufacturers' sales branches, are analyzed to show cash business separate from credit, and of the credit business how much was for a term of 10 days or less, for 11 to 30 days, and for more than 30 days. Not all establishments analyzed their sales on a cash-credit basis. Of the 101,627 service and limited-function wholesalers, 90,913 with sales of $20,803,501,000, or 88.0 percent of the total volume, reported a cash-credit break-down. Likewise, 10,880 of the 12,977 manufacturers' sales branches analyzed their sales to show cash and credit business separately. Sales of these 10,880 branches amounted to $7,639,086,000, or 86.3 percent of the total for all sales branches.

Almost one-fourth (22.5 percent) of the sales of service and limited-function wholesalers was on a cash or c. o. d. basis; credit was extended on 77.5 percent of the business. Collections on the 77.5 percent were made as follows: 16.9 percent in 10 days or less; 33.7 percent in 11 to 30 days; while credit was extended for a period of more than 30 days on 26.9 percent of all sales. Credit for a period of 11 days or more was extended on three-fifths (60.6 percent) of all business of service and limited-function wholesalers.

Over 90 percent of the business of manufacturers' sales branches was credit. Only [illegible] percent of the total was cash received at the time of sale. It is interesting to note that on the other extreme the percentage of total business done on credit for more than 30 days is approximately the same for manufacturers' sales branches as for service and limited-function wholesalers, 26.3 percent and 26.9 percent, respectively.

TABLE N. SUMMARY OF CASH-CREDIT ANALYSES OF SALES BY TYPES OF OPERATION

Type of operation	Total sales analyzed	Percent cash	Percent credit: 10 days or less	Percent credit: 11 to 30 days	Percent credit: More than 30 days
Service and limited-function wholesaler	[illegible]	[illegible]	16.9	33.7	26.9
Manufacturer's sales branch with stock	7,639,086,000	8.3	26.3	39.1	[illegible]

Manufacturers extended credit for a period of not more than 30 days on almost two-thirds (65.4 percent) of all sales made through their sales branches.

Considerable variation is found in the cash-credit ratios for the various kinds of business into which service and limited-function wholesalers are classified. Cash business ranged from a high of 91.7 percent of the total dollar volume for the grain trade to a low of 0.3 percent for merchants of raw silk. Of the 176 kinds of business into which all wholesalers are classified, 34 show less than 5 percent cash at the time of sale. Forty-eight trades reported cash business ranging from 5 to 10 percent of their total volume; 50 trades from 10 to 20 percent; 21 from 20 to 30 percent; while 23 show a cash ratio of 30 percent or more. As a rule, the portion of the total business done on a cash basis is high in the automotive, beer, farm products and farm supplies trades, and in the tobacco business. It is low in such trades as clothing, coal, dry goods, furniture, hardware, lumber and construction materials, and industrial supplies.

A high percentage of credit extended for more than 30 days, on the other hand, is found in the clothing business, dry goods, furniture, hardware, and jewelry. It is interesting to note that long-term credit extension represents a larger portion of sales in the durable consumer goods trades than for such industrial goods as chemicals, hardware, machinery—equipment—supplies, metals, and plumbing and heating.

Credit of not more than 10 days prevails in such kinds of business as breakfast foods, fresh fruits, retailer-cooperative grocery warehouses, and for frozen fruits and vegetables. Credit of 11 to 30 days predominates for bicycles and supplies, sporting goods, automotive parts, chemicals, coal and coke, drugs, radios, some of the building materials and machinery trades, printing and writing paper, and optical goods.

Chart X presents graphically a cash-credit analysis—cash business, credit of 30 days or less, and credit of more than 30 days—for a number of selected kinds of business of service and limited-function wholesalers. The trades are arranged in descending order of percentage of sales on a cash basis.

Receivables.—Service and limited-function wholesalers and also manufacturers' sales branches were asked to report to the 1939 Census of Business their beginning- and end-of-year receivables (notes and accounts from trade customers) arising from the sale of merchandise and carried on the books of the reporting establishment, including any that may have been pledged as collateral for loans. Notes and accounts sold to finance companies and to banks were to be omitted even though they may have been sold "with recourse." The results of this inquiry along with data on beginning- and end-of-year inventories are given in table 6B. Of the 101,627 establishments of service and limited-function wholesalers in the United States in 1939, data on receivables as of December 31, 1939, were reported by 71,866, of whom 62,878 also reported this item of information for both beginning and end of the year. Likewise, 9,522 of the 12,977 sales branches of manufacturers reported end-of-year receivables and 8,883 reported both beginning- and end-of-year receivables.

Receivables as of December 31, 1939, for the two types of operation covered in this study were valued at $3,094,800,000. Of this amount, service and limited-function wholesalers carried $2,211,656,000, equivalent to 10.8 percent of the 1939 sales of reporting establishments, or 5½ weeks' business. Manufacturers' sales branches carried $883,144,000 in receivables, equivalent to sales for more than 6 weeks, on the average. As shown in text table O, receivables as of December 31, 1939, for service and limited-function wholesalers ranged from a low of 5.3 percent of sales in the farm products—consumer goods—trade to a high of 30.3 percent, or almost 4 months' sales, in the jewelry trade. For manufacturers' sales branches, groceries and food specialties was low at 4.9 percent and machinery—equipment—supplies was high at 33.2 percent of 1939 sales.

A close relationship exists between credit policy or credit extension and receivables. Long-term credit may be associated with a high ratio of receivables to sales, while short-term credit results in a small volume of notes and accounts. Direct comparisons between credit as presented in table 6A and receivables in 6B, however, are qualified by the fact that the full length of the credit period may not be apparent from the former table. Furthermore, any receivables sold to banks or finance companies would not be included in table 6B. This latter table provides a measure of the extent to which wholesale establishments finance their customers.

End-of-year receivables of service and limited-function wholesalers were valued 8.8 percent higher than at the beginning of the year, while those carried by manufacturers' sales branches were up 7.6 percent. These increases may not necessarily indicate slower collections in 1939. On the contrary, they probably reflect a larger sales volume in the closing weeks of 1939 than during the comparable period of 1938.

Sales by classes of customers.—Each wholesale establishment in the United States was asked to analyze its business and to report separately in connection with the 1939 census: Sales to retailers for resale; to household consumers, and others who buy at retail; to industrial, professional, and institutional users (concerns that bought goods for business use rather than for resale); to other wholesalers; to export intermediaries; and sales direct to buyers in other countries. Of the 200,573 wholesale establishments in the country, 173,637, or 86.6 percent, were able to analyze their business on this basis. Sales of these 173,637 establishments amounted to $48,862,005,000, or 88.4 percent of the total volume for all wholesale establishments.

Based upon ratios determined from information furnished by the 173,637 establishments, it is found that only slightly more than two-fifths of all wholesale sales, or approximately $22,800,000,000, were to retailers for resale; almost one-third, or $16,800,000,000, went direct to industrial users; while an additional one-fifth, or $12,400,000,000, represented sales by one type of wholesale establishment to another—or what might be termed "duplication" in wholesale trade. Export sales direct to buyers in foreign countries amounted to $1,900,000,000 during the year, or almost 4 percent of the total, and sales to household consumers—"retail sales"—made up the remaining 2 percent, or well over $1,000,000,000.

As would be expected, the various types of establishments differ materially in the classes of customers they serve. For example, approximately three-fifths of the sales of petroleum bulk stations and of service and limited-function wholesalers are direct to retailers. On the other hand, only 13 percent of the business of manufacturers' sales offices and of assemblers of farm products is with retailers. Almost two-thirds (64.9 percent) of the sales of manufacturers' sales offices are to industrial users, while more than one-half (54.2 percent) of the business of assemblers is with wholesalers. Substantial portions of the sales of agents and brokers are to industrial users (35.8 percent) and to wholesalers (39.5 percent).

In table Q the ratios as given in table P have been applied to total sales of all establishments in order to determine the probable distribution had all establishments answered the inquiry. It should be noted that these projections are accurate only to the degree that the percentages given in the sample would have held true had all establishments analyzed their sales by classes of customers.

A comparative summary of sales by classes of customers, 1939–35, is given in table R, by types of operation. Generally speaking, slightly larger portions of the 1939 sales were to industrial users and to other wholesalers, while the percentage of the total volume to retailers dropped off. Export sales for all types of operation save one—assemblers of farm products—were up slightly over 1935.

Wholesale vs. retail sales.—It is noted that not all sales of wholesale establishments, as defined for census purposes, are to retailers for resale. In fact, of the total volume of $55,265,640,000 only about $23,000,000,000 was to retailers. When comparing this amount with the $42,041,790,000 of retail business as reported in the 1939 Census of Retail Trade, it should be remembered that retailers buy substantial amounts of goods direct from manufacturers, from farmers, and from other producers, as well as from wholesalers. Furthermore, as shown in table 7B, retailers' purchases from other retailers during 1939 amounted to $928,932,000. The difference between the $42,041,790,000 retail sales and the $23,000,000,000 sales by wholesale establishments to retailers should not be assumed to represent mark-up.

Table 7 analyzes sales by classes of customers. Data are presented by types of operation and, under each type group, by kinds of business. The size of sample for any classification may be determined by relating "total of sales analyzed," as given in column 3, to "total net sales" as given in the second column of the table.

Legal form of organization.—Table 9 analyzes wholesale trade by legal form of organization. It presents basic information on number of establishments, sales, expenses, personnel, pay roll, and stocks separately for individual proprietorships, partnerships, corporations, and "other" or miscellaneous forms. Corporate concerns operated one-half of the establishments and accounted for three-fourths of the sales of all wholesale trade in the United States in 1939. Of the 200,573 establishments, 97,503, or 48.6 percent, were operated by corporations. Sales of these 97,503 establishments amounted to $41,012,835,000, or 74.2 percent of the sales of all wholesale establishments in 1939.

A total of 98,646 establishments were operated by unincorporated concerns, 73,247 of which were by individual proprietorships and 25,399 by partnerships. Sales of individual proprietorships amounted to $6,969,969,000, 12.6 percent of the total for all classifications, and to $5,984,541,000 for partnerships. Individual proprietorships and partnerships combined contributed 23.4 percent of all sales. In addition to corporations, individual proprietorships, and partnerships, a few other forms of organization such as common law trusts, unincorporated cooperatives, cooperatives organized under special laws, and oriental mutuals are found in wholesale trade. Including a small number which failed to report their legal form, a total of 4,424 establishments are found in the "other" classification. Sales of this group amounted to $1,298,295,000 for the year 1939.

Negro proprietorships.—Twenty-six of the individual proprietorships and partnerships were operated by Negroes. Sales of these 26 establishments amounted to $1,131,000 during the year 1939. They provided employment for 29 active proprietors and firm members and for 66 employees on a salary or wage basis. Pay roll of the 66 employees amounted to $90,000 for the year.

Comparisons: 1939, 1935, and 1929.—Data on wholesale trade by legal form are also available for 1935 and 1929. As previously stated, the total number of wholesale establishments increased from 168,820 in 1929 to 200,573 in 1939, or 18.8 percent. Compared with the 18.8 percent increase for all establishments during the 10-year period, individual proprietorships increased 39.6 percent; partnerships 17.5 percent; and corporations 10.3 percent. The number of places of business operated as individual proprietorships increased at a much rapid rate during the 10-year period than did other forms of organization, with the result that they accounted for 36.5 percent of all establishments in 1939, compared with only 31.1 percent in 1929. Corporations dropped in terms of the total number from 52.4 percent in 1929 to 48.6 percent in 1939.

Little change is noted in the relative portion of the total business done by the various forms of organization when 1939 is compared with 1929. Corporations increased slightly, from 7[illegible] percent to 74.2 percent during the 10-year period, and individual proprietorships from 11.1 percent to 12.6 percent. Partnerships, on the other hand, dropped from 12.1 percent of the total dollar volume in 1929 to 10.8 percent in 1939.

Ownership study.—In table 10 wholesale trade is analyzed according to the number of establishments under one ownership. All ownerships are grouped into the following classifications: 1 wholesale establishment only; 2 wholesale establishments; 3–5; 6–9; 10–14; 15–24; 25–49; and 50 or more establishments under one ownership. For each group the number of establishments, sales, personnel, pay roll, and inventories are given.

Two-thirds or 136,887 of the 200,573 establishments in the United States in 1939 were owned by organizations, concerns, or individuals who had only one wholesale place of business. These 136,887 "independent" establishments reported sales totaling $28,766,974,000 during 1939 which was 52.1 percent of all wholesale trade for that year. They provided employment for 1,005,089 persons which was 59.3 percent of the total personnel of all wholesale establishments.

Operating 2 establishments each were 3,836 organizations or concerns with 7,672 places of business and $2,860,383,000 in sales. In the 3-5-establishment classification were 2,517 concerns with 8,985 places of business and $4,373,980,000 in sales. Thus organizations operating five establishments or less contributed almost two-thirds (65.1 percent) of all wholesale business during 1939.

On the other extreme, 113 organizations each operated 50 or more establishments—a total of 29,187 places of business. Sales of these 29,187 establishments amounted to $7,750,712,000, or 14.0 percent of the total. Likewise, 134 organizations each maintained 25–49 places of business or a total of 4,598. Sales of these organizations totaled $2,679,448,000.

Compared with 1935 and 1929.—Table V compares number of establishments and sales, 1939, 1935, and 1929, according to the number of wholesale places of business under one ownership. For convenience, sales are expressed as a percentage of the total for all establishments during each year. Due to differences in classification of ownership groups, it has been necessary to make some combinations in 1939 and 1935 figures for comparisons with 1929.

The number of establishments in all ownership groups increased between 1935 and 1939 except in the "50 and over" classification where there was a small drop, from 29,761 to 29,187. It is probable that 1935 figures for the 50-and-over group are somewhat inflated as all commission bulk stations in the petroleum trade were counted in this classification for that year. With some exceptions, the number by groups is also larger in 1939 than in 1929. Exceptions are noted in the middle groups, which may indicate a trend toward more establishments under one ownership. Independents, however, also increased in number from 108,866 in 1929 to 136,887 in 1939, a gain of 28,021.

Independents—one ownership, one establishment—accounted for almost exactly the same portion of total sales during each of the 3 years, 52.0 percent in 1929, 52.2 percent in 1935, and 52.1 percent in 1939. On the other hand, organizations operating 25 or more wholesale establishments increased their portion of total business from 14.8 percent in 1929 to 18.8 percent in 1939.

CHART XIV. — AGE OF WHOLESALE ESTABLISHMENTS: 1939

Age of establishment and year acquired by present owner.—The questionnaire used in the 1939 Wholesale Census provided for reporting in connection with each place of business: (a) Date (year) of original establishment of the business in city of present (1939) location, and (b) date acquired by present (1939) owner. The results of these two inquiries are summarized in table 11. It is believed that, through lack of knowledge on the part of present owners of operations under predecessors, "year the business was established" and "year of establishment" err on the side of understatement. This belief is strengthened by the fact that in such a large number of cases—128,692 of the 200,573—"year of establishment" and "year acquired by present owner" were reported as the same. Furthermore, in 34,089 cases date of establishment was not given.

Of the 200,573 wholesale establishments in the United States in 1939, 4,902 started operations prior to 1890; hence they were at least 50 years old. An additional 12,847 were established in the 17-year period 1890–1906, and 17,014 more in the decade 1907–16. Thus a total of 34,763, or 17.3 percent, were established prior to the first World War. On the other extreme, 9,309 started in 1939; an equal number, 9,351, in 1938; and 17,075 in the 2-year period 1936–37; hence a total of 35,735 were not more than 4 years old.

Eliminating those that failed to report the year business was opened, it is found that one-half of all establishments, 48.4 percent, were not more than 10 years of age. Only 51.6 percent started operations prior to 1930.

[illegible]	4,902		[illegible]	793,613
[illegible]	[illegible]		[illegible]	[illegible]

As a rule, the older the establishment the more business it did during 1939. Average sales during 1939 of those more than 50 years old amounted to $793,613. From the oldest the average decreased consistently with the drop in age to $119,911 for those starting in 1938.

Long established businesses pay their employees more on the average than do newer ones. Average 1939 pay roll per employee of businesses that started prior to 1890 amounted to $1,816. From this figure as a high, it decreased consistently to a low of $1,377 for establishments that began operations in 1938. Pay roll per dollar of sales was also highest, 6.3 percent, for the oldest establishments and decreased to 3.6 percent for those starting in 1939.

Year acquired by present owner.—A total of 15,061 establishments were started or acquired by their present (1939) owners in 1939. Similarly, 14,280 were acquired in 1938 and 24,476 were taken over during the 2-year period 1936–37, or a total of 53,817—26.8 percent—came into the possession of their present owners within the past 4 years.

It is interesting to note that 1,217 places of business have remained continuously under the same ownership for over 50 years, and that an additional 7,805 were acquired prior to 1906. As was found to be true in connection with "age of business," large average annual sales per establishment are associated with long operation under the same ownership. Establishments acquired prior to 1890 by present owners did an average volume of over a million dollars in 1939. From this high, the average dropped rather consistently to $136,550 for establishments taken over in 1938.

CHAPTER III.—CLASSIFICATIONS—TYPE AND KIND

Classification by types of operation.—All wholesale establishments are classified by types of operation primarily on the basis of functions performed. Some wholesalers perform a variety of functions such as buying, assembling, sorting and grading, warehousing, selling, delivering from stock, and extending credit, while others perform one or, at the most, only a few of these services. Obviously, employment, pay roll, expenses, and other characteristics of the business vary with the functions performed. In attempting to classify or group types of wholesale establishments, several possibilities are encountered. They may be classified as follows:

1. According to the [illegible] title to the merchandise and operate as merchants and those [illegible] title.
2. According to the ownership of the establishment, in order to indicate single-unit establishments, branches, and chains.
3. On the basis of whether they emphasize the buying function [illegible] establishments and selling [illegible]
4. According to services rendered, indicating whether they rendered complete or limit[illegible]
5. According to the relationship of the wholesale establishment [illegible] of [illegible] houses; or to producers, as in the case of manufacturers' [illegible]
6. According to which [illegible] coverage.
7. According to whether [illegible] or domestic trade.

Any one of these classes may be further subdivided. Thus, it is possible to classify organizations engaged in domestic trade into buying organizations and selling organizations. Each of these may be classified in turn on the basis of title to the goods [illegible] show merchant and nonmerchant establishments, or on the basis of who owns the establishments [illegible] to determine whether they are integrated with manufacturers or other producers. Many business concerns do not conform to any given pattern, their functions overlapping in various classifications. At some points it has been necessary, for census purposes, to place them in one group or another on a more or less arbitrary basis. It should be emphasized, in this connection, that the entire business of an establishment is placed in one classification or another, according to major functions. In order to present statistics in a manner as to enable one to work out what is considered most essential, all wholesale establishments are grouped into six major type classifications, some of which are further subdivided as outlined below.

Types of operation defined.—I. Service and limited-function wholesalers.—This group includes wholesale establishments engaged primarily in the buying and selling of goods on their own account and which are largely independent in ownership. It consists of the following 10 types of operation:

a. Wholesale merchants.—Wholesalers of the conventional type who buy and sell in the domestic market and perform all of the principal wholesale functions. They are merchant middlemen who sell goods principally to retailers or to industrial, commercial, or professional users. They buy and sell merchandise on their own account, carry stocks, assemble in large lots and redistribute in smaller quantities, usually through salesmen; extend credit to customers and render advice to the trade. Wholesale merchants in the consumer-goods trades sell primarily to retailers, but in the industrial-goods field they sell chiefly to industrial users. This classification includes some establishments which are frequently classified as retailers such as industrial machinery dealers and equipment and supply houses.

[illegible] distinguish between [illegible] and wholesale [illegible] on the basis of the reports submitted to the census, the two forms are [illegible] synonymous. In many lines of trade the terms appear to be used interchangeably with preference given to the more descriptive term "distributor" or "wholesale merchant."

Establishments commonly referred to as "supply jobbers," who sell mainly or partly to wholesalers, and "semijobbers" or "subjobbers," who sell chiefly to retailers or industrial users but who make some sales to household or individual consumers are included in this classification.

Cooperative buying associations buying, storing, and distributing goods to farmer or to consumer cooperatives are included with wholesale merchants because their small number does not permit showing them separately. Retailer-cooperative warehouses, as described below, however, are set out as a separate classification. Mail order or catalog wholesalers who sell all or the bulk of their goods by mail are included here.

b. Voluntary group wholesalers are wholesale merchants sponsoring or affiliated with sponsors of voluntary organizations of independent retailers performing joint advertising and sales promotion activities. The term is limited here, for the most part, to joint merchandising groups in which the members are identified by a common name. All wholesalers sponsoring such groups are included regardless of the portion of their sales to retail members of the organization.

c. Converters (textile), as the term is used here, are merchant middlemen in the textile trade. In addition to carrying on the functions of wholesale merchants, converters also perform or have performed for them some of the functions of manufacturing in its final stages. The manufacturing functions, if any, are so insignificant in the case of converters included in the wholesale census, as compared with all of the other functions they perform, that they are regarded as wholesale middlemen. Converting plants engaged in finishing, dyeing, printing, etc., are included in the census of manufactures.

d. Export merchants are wholesale merchants selling in the foreign rather than the domestic market. Their sales may be largely to foreign importers, wholesale merchants, or industrial users.

e. Importers in the wholesale field are largely identified with wholesale merchants as far as functions are concerned. Their chief distinction lies in the source of purchases, which is primarily foreign. Furthermore, sales of importers may be made largely to wholesalers or to industrial users rather than direct to retailers.

f. Industrial distributors are distinguished from wholesale merchants by the fact that they handle a general line of industrial goods and sell largely to industrial users. For census purposes, the term is limited to establishments dealing in a more or less complete line of materials, equipment, and/or supplies for mines, factories, oil wells, public utilities, and similar industries. Establishments engaged primarily in selling machinery are not included in this classification. Among others, the following are included: Oil-well supply companies; mine and mill supply houses; and hardware, electrical, and plumbing establishments with important industrial departments.

g. Cash-and-carry wholesalers buy and sell merchandise in their own name, carry stocks, usually assemble in large quantities, and sell in small amounts to retailers and to other dealers who call for the goods at the wholesalers' place of business and pay cash for them. They are distinguished from wholesale merchants by the fact that they usually carry a limited line of products, mostly staples and fast-moving items, and do not generally extend credit to their customers, nor do they make deliveries. In the grocery trade, service wholesalers frequently operate cash-and-carry depots.

Retailer cooperatives and voluntary group wholesalers selling on a cash-and-carry basis are included in their respective classifications rather than here.

h. Drop shippers or desk jobbers are distinguished primarily by the fact that they take title to the goods they sell but they do not perform the warehouse or storage function as they do not handle the goods. Nor do they perform the delivery function, for orders solicited from trading establishments or industrial users are filled direct from the manufacturer or other source of supply to the drop shipper's customer. Under this classification are included only those establishments which operate predominately on a drop shipping basis.

i. Wagon distributors perform the wholesale functions of buying, selling, storing in a limited way, delivering, and occasionally extending credit to their customers. Their chief distinction from wholesale merchants lies in the following points:

(1) They combine the functions of salesmen with those of deliverymen. Usually no separate sales force is employed, the work of selling and delivering being carried out by salesmen-drivers.

(2) They normally carry a limited assortment of merchandise consisting of nationally advertised specialties and fast-moving items of a perishable or semiperishable nature.

(3) Their practice is to sell for cash and in the original package.

It should be noted that only those wagon distributors with recognizable places of business are included in the wholesale census.

j. Retailer-cooperative warehouses are wholesale establishments owned and operated cooperatively by groups of independent retailers buying collectively. The establishment functions as an incorporated wholesale company selling chiefly to members but occasionally doing some regular wholesale business. In addition to collective buying and performing other wholesale services, many retailer cooperatives have entered actively into collective selling and are giving increased attention to merchandising methods of their members. Buying groups without warehousing facilities are not included in this classification.

II. Manufacturers' sales branches (with stocks). Wholesale outlets owned and operated by manufacturers, apart from their plants, primarily for the purpose of carrying stocks of, selling, and delivering their products are included in this classification. Sales of manufacturers' sales branches include bookings (sales for direct delivery from plant) as well as sales from stocks at the branches. Subsidiary sales corporations of manufacturers set up to do a regular wholesale business, selling primarily to retailers or to industrial users, are classified, for census purposes, as service or limited-function wholesalers rather than as manufacturers' sales branches.

III. Manufacturers' sales offices (without stocks).—This type of establishment is distinguished from the manufacturers' sales branch by the fact that sales offices do not include facilities for the physical storage, handling, and delivery of merchandise.

IV. Petroleum bulk stations and terminals.—These types of establishments are distinguished primarily by their physical characteristics for storing and distributing gasoline, oil, and other petroleum products. Distributors selling petroleum packaged goods, or in bulk from tank trucks, but without physical equipment common to these types of operation, are included under other classifications.

Bulk stations maintain storage facilities on railroad or other transportation lines and sell, usually from trucks, to retailers, commercial, and industrial users, and, in the agricultural areas, to farmers. Four subclassifications are defined as follows:

a. Independent bulk stations are single stations independently owned or lessee operated. Independent stations, as defined for census purposes, however, may be operated under the same ownership with filling stations. The term carries no implication as to whether the products sold are those of a so-called major oil company or of an independent refiner.

b. Commission stations are stations owned or leased by multi-unit concerns (concerns operating more than one bulk station) but whose operators have a proprietary interest in the business. Operators of these stations are paid commissions which include undetermined amounts to cover overhead and delivery costs as well as pay roll. Station personnel are considered as employees of the operator, rather than of the owner of the bulk plant.

c. Salary stations are owned and operated by multi-unit concerns, usually so-called major oil companies. All personnel of salary stations are considered as employees of the oil companies owning the plants.

d. Cooperative bulk stations are stations owned and operated by cooperative associations. Many of these stations sell substantial amounts to farmers.

e. Distributing terminals are places of business located at pipe line, water, and other transportation terminal points with special equipment for the transfer of petroleum products from one type of transportation to another. Only those terminals are included in the wholesale census that make a practice of selling petroleum products to other concerns, usually to distributors and large-scale users. Facilities used only in intra-company transfer of stocks are not considered as separate establishments for the purpose of the census of business.

V. Agents and brokers.—This type group includes, for census purposes, individuals or concerns having recognizable places of business and who are in business for themselves, negotiating purchases and/or sales in domestic or foreign trade, but who do not, as a rule, take title to the goods. Their chief additional function lies in furnishing marketing information. They may represent a single client or a group of clients, either buyers or sellers, and they frequently specialize in the lines of merchandise handled. Their compensation is usually in the form of fees or commissions.

Net sales as shown for agents and brokers includes a certain amount of approximation, as many such establishments do not maintain records on the dollar volume of business. In such cases carefully prepared estimates were accepted.

a. Auction companies, as the term is used here, are concerns that sell by the auction method at wholesale. Sales are conducted under definite rules and are usually made to the highest or best bidder. These establishments provide places for public inspection and sale of merchandise consigned to them. Often, on their own responsibility, they extend credit to purchasers. Auction selling is most common in the marketing of leaf tobacco, livestock, fruits and vegetables, and other farm products, but occasionally is found in the furniture, house furnishings, general merchandise, and other trades. Auctioneers and so-called "community sales" are not included in the wholesale census.

b. Commodity and merchandise brokers are wholesale middlemen who negotiate transactions between buyers and sellers without having direct physical control of the goods and without taking title or assuming the risk of price fluctuations. They act as agents for their principals, who usually are producers or wholesalers although sometimes brokers represent retailers. Brokers may represent either buyers or sellers in a given transaction, or both. In certain fields they may concentrate largely on the buying of goods for their clients. In such cases, they are frequently designated as "buying brokers." They do not, as a rule, take title to the goods to which their negotiations apply, nor do they finance their clients. Their powers as to prices and terms of sale are usually limited by their principals.

Brokers are not bound to any set of clients but operate freely in the wholesale field. Their relations with any one client may not be continuous as they are in the case of selling agents or manufacturers' agents. Remuneration of brokers is in the form of commissions or fees, based upon the value of the goods or upon the physical quantity of merchandise involved in the transaction. In addition to negotiating purchases or sales, their chief function consists of advising their clients as to market conditions, inasmuch as knowledge of market conditions and sources of supply and of outlets is their main stock in trade. Normally brokers do not handle the merchandise. In some trades it is difficult to distinguish brokers from selling agents and manufacturers' agents, the terms frequently being used to describe similar methods of operation.

c. Commission merchants handle commodities consigned to them on a commission basis. As commission merchants they do not take title to the goods they sell for their clients. It is their practice, when the needs require it, to maintain places of business suitable for the handling, conditioning, warehousing, and selling of merchandise. In some lines of trade commission merchants or commission houses act principally as shippers' agents, but in most lines of business they combine some merchant business with commission dealings. Those selling principally on a consignment basis are included here, whereas those dealing principally on a commission basis but doing some consignment business are classed as service or limited-function wholesalers.

This classification also includes factors who specialize in the raw cotton trade since their operations are similar to commission merchants. Factors are located, as a rule, in central markets and receive the cotton on consignment from the producing areas. Their work consists of advancing funds to shippers, who may be growers; in warehousing and storing the goods; in grading; and finally, in selling.

d. Export agents are functional middlemen who specialize in the purchase of goods for, or sale of goods to, foreign buyers. Included in this classification are export commission houses, export agents, and export brokers.

e. Import agents include commission merchants, manufacturers' agents, and selling agents who represent foreign sellers in the domestic market. In addition to negotiating sales, they usually attend to customs formalities.

f. Manufacturers' agents sell part of the output of certain manufacturers on an extended contractual basis. They are limited with respect to territorial operations and as to prices and terms of sale. Their principal duty is selling, although some of them warehouse goods from which deliveries are made. A segregation is made, for census purposes, between those carrying stocks and those without warehousing facilities. Manufacturers' agents, as the term is used in the census, are in business for themselves—not employees of any one company—are paid on a commission basis, and usually represent two or more producers whose goods are noncompeting in nature.

g. Selling agents are independent business entrepreneurs operating on a commission basis, whose principal function is to sell the output of a given line of goods for one or more manufacturers with whom they maintain continuous contractual relationships. Selling agents differ from manufacturers' agents in the following respects: (1) They normally handle the output of one or more products of the clients they serve; (2) they are less limited in sales territory; (3) they have considerable latitude with regard to prices, terms, etc., whereas the authority of the manufacturers' agent is limited; and (4) they frequently finance their clients and offer assistance in connection with the advertising and other sales-promotion activities. When making comparisons with previous censuses, it is suggested that manufacturers' agents and selling agents be combined.

h. Other agents include purchasing agents, resident buyers, and cooperative buying offices.

Purchasing agents, frequently referred to in some trades as syndicate buyers, are independent middlemen buying merchandise for their clients. The chief functions of those included in this classification are to buy merchandise for their clients and to supply them with market information. They are to be distinguished from so-called purchasing agents employed in manufacturing plants who are not in business for themselves but work for a single employer. They frequently combine orders from a number of relatively small wholesalers or retailers and buy on a larger scale than would be possible for the individual concerns whom they represent.

Resident buyers are purchasing agents operating primarily in the dry goods trade. They are located in central markets and are in close contact with manufacturers in these markets and with wholesalers and retailers at outlying points. Normally they represent the interests of buyers although they may also occasionally represent sellers.

VI. Assemblers (mainly farm products).—This type group includes establishments engaged primarily in the purchase, or assembly for sale, of farm products or fish and sea food at local producing points or in the cities of producing regions. Assemblers, as the term is used here, purchase direct from farmers and fishermen or from other local dealers. The emphasis of such establishments is on the buying or assembling of merchandise in quantities for economical handling and shipping, usually direct to commission men, carlot wholesale merchants, or to industrial users.

This group includes individuals, firms, and cooperative associations doing business on their own account, that is, outright purchasing and selling, and those operating on a salary or commission basis for some central organization. The chief distinction between some of the types, as their names indicate, rests upon the commodities which they handle rather than functions performed.

a. Assemblers of farm products are independent buyers of agricultural commodities who forward or consign the goods purchased by them to wholesale receivers or distributors in another and usually a larger market or to manufacturers or processors. Some of the larger handlers of agricultural commodities also maintain assembling facilities at points of concentration in producing regions. Also, larger independent concerns often maintain offices at a central point and frequently have a group, line, or chain of buying stations.

Large quantities of agricultural commodities are purchased by local storekeepers or others chiefly engaged in some other business. These purchases are included with the business of the establishments, which may be classified as retail stores, service shops, or other businesses according to their major operations, and not here.

b. Commission buyers operate very much as assemblers except that they are engaged as agents in the buying of agricultural products for others, rather than dealing on their own account.

c. Cooperative marketing associations are associations formed largely by farmers for the purpose of disposing of their products at the most advantageous prices for the mutual benefit of the members. In addition to actual selling of the products, they often grade, pack, store, and in some cases advertise the commodities they handle. They may also buy for their members various supplies such as feed, seed, fertilizer, and fuel.

The term "cooperative marketing association" includes local cooperatives, both those disposing of their products direct and those marketing through a central association or agency. Cooperative cream stations or cooperative elevators are covered under their respective designations and not here. Farmers' cooperatives engaged primarily in buying for members are included in the retail census.

It should be pointed out that the decision as to whether an organization is or is not cooperative in character is based in general on the information in the schedule as submitted.

d. Cooperative sales agencies include both the sales agencies and the central marketing associations set up by agricultural cooperatives to facilitate the sale of products of members. Regional associations of federated cooperatives organized on a local, regional, State, or national basis are included here as well as the national selling agency. Thus it will be seen that there is some duplication in sales as reported by sales agencies and those reported by cooperative marketing associations, the sales agency representing, in a sense, the second or third level of selling.

e. Cream stations include collecting stations or depots located in fluid milk producing regions, stations open to buy fluid cream or milk. They may be maintained by city milk distributors, by creamery companies, by cooperative milk associations, or by independent firms. Some cream station operators devote their full time to purchasing and shipping milk and cream. In other cases they also purchase eggs, poultry, and other farm products. The majority of cream stations, however, are operated in conjunction with other business [illegible] retail stores, service shops, elevators, etc. Unless the business as a cream station predominates, the establishment is not included in this classification.

f. Country grain elevators include independent, line, and cooperative concerns purchasing and handling grain through properties commonly referred to as "elevators." Business concerns in producing areas, buying and selling grain, who do not [illegible] properties commonly known as "elevators" are classified, for census purposes, as assemblers. Terminal elevators in central markets engaged primarily in selling grain are considered, for census purposes, as wholesale merchant[illegible]

Independent elevators are as a rule local, [illegible] purposes, the term is limited to a single elevator under one ownership.

Line elevators are [illegible] more elevators under one ownership [illegible] as reported to the census. Strictly speaking, the term "line elevator" should [illegible] tions are directed from a central point, as it is conceivable that an independent elevator [illegible] cases of which [illegible] vator. For census purposes, however, it is necessary to classify any group of two or more elevators under the same ownership, except those [illegible] classification; hence, elevators of such companies are designated as line elevators. Two or more elevators operated by a cooperative association are [illegible] here. Many line elevators are owned by milling concerns which buy grain [illegible] purchase the grain through the elevators but which sell only from central points. For elevators performing the buying but not the selling function, "sales," as reported to the census, represent the value of the grain purchased.

Cooperative elevators may be either independent or line since some farmers' [illegible] elevators. [illegible] elevators operated by cooperative associations.

g. Packers and shippers.—Production-point assembling, packing, and shipping of fruits and vegetables and of sea foods. Operators who do some growing but who perform primarily a commercial business for their neighbors or other producers are included. The census of business, however, excludes packing houses operated as integral parts of farms. Commercial and cooperative packing houses packing and shipping sea foods are included [illegible] by fishermen [illegible] and marketing their own catch are excluded.

As an aid to a comparative study by types of operation, 1939 type classifications together with their 1935 and 1929 equivalents are given in the accompanying tabulation.

Classification by kinds of business.—In addition to type of operation, each wholesale establishment is classified by kind of business according to lines of merchandise handled or trade designation. The kind-of-business classification of an establishment, as in the case of type of operation, is based chiefly on the information contained in the 1939 census report, although for concerns that also submitted returns to previous censuses, the 1935 classification was readily available as an aid in doubtful cases. Specifically, the 1939 schedule forms provided for self-designation of kind of business—the "designation by which the establishment is known to the trade or public." As a further aid to classification, three of the four schedules used in the canvass called for an analysis of sales by commodities or lines of merchandise.

Establishments are classified as a whole on the basis of their primary business. It is recognized that the lines of merchandise or commodities handled by many wholesalers overlap two or more classifications—drug wholesalers frequently sell liquor, tobacco, confectionery, etc.; grocery wholesalers may also sell wines, liquors, and tobacco; or hardware wholesalers may sell automotive supplies, electrical goods, plumbing and heating supplies, and other industrial goods. It has been necessary in most cases, however, to assign an establishment to one classification only and to include the entire business of the establishment therein.

Guided largely by experience in previous censuses, all establishments have been divided into 28 kind-of-business groups. These groups comprise 172 minor or detailed classifications.

The various kinds of business, arranged as they appear in the tables—alphabetically for the most part—are described in the Appendixes. A conversion chart also appears in the Appendixes giving the 1935 and 1929 equivalents of the 1939 classifications.

CHAPTER IV.—DESCRIPTION OF TERMS

Number of establishments.—Wholesale establishments, as defined for census purposes, are places of business engaged primarily in selling or acting as agents in selling (or purchasing) goods in a wholesale manner. The place of business may be a store where goods are kept in stock for sale, a warehouse from which sales are made at wholesale, a sales or brokerage office, or a buying office (or part of an office that may be shared with others). The count includes all places of business recognizable as such to census enumerators and which are engaged primarily in selling goods or merchandise in a wholesale manner.

Selling in a wholesale manner or on a wholesale basis is selling primarily to retailers, institutions, industrial users, and to other wholesale organizations for resale, for further processing, or for business use rather than for personal or household consumption. Sales to retailers for resale constitute only about two-fifths of all wholesale trade as the field is outlined for census purposes.

As the canvass was conducted by means of personal contacts, peddlers and others selling at wholesale but without recognizable places of business are not included here. Wholesaler-retailers are included in the retail census if more than one-half of their sales are at retail to consumers. They are classified in the wholesale census, however, if more than one-half of their sales are made in a wholesale manner. Each wholesale establishment of a multi-unit or chain organization is counted separately. All establishments canvassed in 1940 that were in existence in 1939, even though their operations may have extended over but a portion of the year, are included.

Sales terms.—Sales or net sales are derived by deducting from gross sales the value of goods returned by, and allowances made to, customers. Receipts from services and from other sources in the normal operation of the business are included as well as receipts from sales of merchandise. Also, for purposes of the wholesale census, all forms of sales taxes are included.

Some establishments included in the wholesale census, such as purchasing agents, syndicate buyers, grain elevators, and cream stations are engaged chiefly in buying or assembling goods for parent organizations or for clients, the selling phase being incidental or non-existent. Purchases are considered as equivalent to net sales for these classes of establishments.

Agents and brokers operating on a commission basis, but who kept no records of the dollar volume of business, were asked to submit carefully prepared estimates by computing net sales on the basis of average commission rates or fees charged. Where reporting brokers or agents failed to make these computations themselves, data on average commission rates charged by them during the year together with data on commissions earned were supplied to the wholesale census, where the computations were thus effected.

Sales by classes of customers.—Most establishments analyzed their business by classes of customers showing how much of their sales was to retailers, to household consumers, to industrial users, to other wholesale organizations, and how much was export business. In the petroleum trade the analysis was made on an ex-tax basis.

Sales to retailers.—Each establishment was requested to report separately its sales to retailers. For enumeration purposes the term "retailer" was used as described in the census of retail trade (See Vol. I, Retail Trade: 1939). "Sales to retailers" presumably exclude purchases made by retailers of such items as machines, fixtures, equipment, and supplies bought for use in the conduct of the business rather than for resale.

Sales to household consumers (at retail).—The amount shown under this classification represents retail business of wholesalers. Reporting concerns were instructed to include here sales to their own employees.

Sales to industrial users.—These are sales made by wholesale establishments to manufacturers, mines, railroads, oil wells, public utilities, institutions, and the like. They represent goods bought for business use such as machinery, equipment, and supplies and raw materials, rather than goods bought for resale in the same form as purchased.

Sales to wholesalers.—Under this inquiry each establishment was asked to report its business with other wholesale organizations as defined above. The data under this heading represent duplication in wholesale trade, i. e., the extent to which goods are sold by one wholesale establishment to another.

Sales to export intermediaries represent sales of goods to establishments which in turn are engaged primarily in the exporting business.

Export sales to buyers in foreign countries.—As the term indicates, the amount represents sales to buyers who do not maintain established places of business in the United States. It represents the domestic value of goods exported by wholesale establishments, or purchased from them for export. Domestic organizations maintaining foreign branches were asked to report here the value of goods shipped to such branches.

Cash-credit terms.—Service and limited function wholesalers and also manufacturers' sales branches were asked to analyze their 1939 sales and to report cash and credit business separately.

Cash or "spot cash."—All sales on which customers paid cash at the time of purchase or on delivery of the merchandise, including c. o. d. business.

Credit sales.—Sales on which time elapsed between date of sale and date of payment, or all [illegible] strictly cash sales. Credit sales are classified in table 6A on the basis of time extension into 10 days or less, 11–30 days, and more than 30 days.

Commodity sales (table 8).—All questionnaires used in the 1939 Wholesale Census except Form 33 provided for reporting sales by commodities or lines of merchandise. For a complete list of commodities see explanation of table 8, chapter V.

Commodity coverage.—Not all wholesale establishments supplied information on sales by commodities. Had all reports been broken down on this basis "sales analyzed by commodities" and "total net sales" would have been the same and "commodity coverage" would have been 100 percent. Since the records of some establishments were such that no break-down could be obtained, total "commodity sales" for any trade is usually less than total net sales for the same classification. The term "commodity coverage" is used in the census to express the degree of completeness of the commodity analysis, or what might be referred to as the size of the sample. Commodity coverage is the ratio of sales made by the establishments reporting commodity figures to the total sales of all establishments for the same classification.

Sales tax. As used in connection with table 7A, the term represents the amount of local, State, or Federal taxes which were collected from customers, over and above the selling price of the reporting establishment, and paid directly to the governmental taxing agency.

Sales- or business-size groups.—In table 4 wholesale merchants and, for the trades in which they appear, industrial distributors are analyzed by size based on 1939 sales. In classifying the establishments according to volume of business, nine sales-size groups were used, as follows:

Group number	Sales
I	$2,000,000 and over.
II	$1,000,000–$1,999,999.
III	$500,000–$999,999.
IV	$300,000–$499,999.
V	$200,000–$299,999.
VI	$100,000–$199,999.
VII	$50,000–$99,999.
VIII	$[illegible]
IX	Under $[illegible]

Employment and pay-roll terms—Active proprietors of unincorporated businesses.—The number of active proprietors includes [illegible] unincorporated businesses devoting the major portion of their time to the operation of the business. Artificial [illegible] They are actively engaged in the business [illegible] is not included in the count of employees [illegible] compensation, if any, included in pay roll. Executives and salaried officers of corporations are classified as employees [illegible]

Number of employees.—This term represents the average number of full-time and part-time paid employees of wholesale establishments, including executives and salaried corporation officers. The average for the year is obtained by totaling the number reported monthly (for the pay-roll period ended nearest the 15th of each month) and dividing the [illegible] by 12. Active proprietors and firm members of unincorporated businesses are not included in the count of employees.

Employees by sex.—The number of employees as of October were reported by sex. For purposes of presenting the results, the percent female as of October was applied to the average number for the year, thus obtaining the number of males and females as shown in table 2.

Full-time and part-time employees.—For purposes of this inquiry, respondents were instructed to report as "full-time employees" those who worked or were paid for the full number of hours of the workweek. All others were to be considered as part-time employees. There is some overlapping in the two classifications due to a lack of common usage of the terms. The term "part-time employee" frequently is used, particularly in the seasonal trades, with reference to persons engaged for a short period of time although while employed they may work the full number of hours per week. Except for the farm products trade, it is believed that the amount of overlapping represents but a small portion of the total.

Employment and pay roll by occupational groups.—To provide a better understanding of employment and pay roll of wholesale establishments, each respondent was asked to classify his employees by occupational groups on the basis of functions performed, and to report the number of full-time and part-time separately, together with their respective pay rolls for a typical week. The week ended October 21, 1939, was selected as fairly representative for wholesale trade. Operators of seasonal businesses, however, were instructed to report one week of seasonal employment during their active season. Upon tabulation, examining the returns that most seasonal businesses reported their week of maximum or near maximum employment; hence the total number of employees as shown in any classification for the week may exceed the average number of employees for the year. The fact that the suggested week was in October, a month of much employment, also tends to increase the number for the week over that for the year.

A [illegible] performs a variety of functions and [illegible] that one occupational group, the respondent was instructed to classify him on the basis of the function requiring the major portion of his time during the week and to count him under one classification only. The entire pay roll of such employee was reported under the one classification, and not prorated.

Executives and salaried corporation officers.—This group includes two general types of employees: (a) Salaried officers of corporations such as president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer of the corporation, the general auditor, and other persons appointed by the board of directors; and (b) hired executives such as [illegible] managers, sales managers, credit managers, and others devoting the major portion of their time to responsible administrative and supervisory duties.

Office and clerical employees.—Stenographers, office secretaries, bookkeepers, accountants, clerks, and other so-called white-collar workers except salespeople and warehouse and shipping clerks.

Inside selling employees.—House salesmen and others devoting all or the major portion of their time inside the establishment, meeting prospective customers and making sales, including sales by telephone and mail.

Outside selling employees.—Traveling or road and specialty salesmen operating from the establishment as headquarters and who spend a large portion of their time outside the establishment. Commission as well as salaried salesmen are included. Manufacturers' agents and combination salesmen or other sales representatives in business for themselves, however, are excluded.

Salesmen.—This term is used with reference to petroleum bulk stations and terminals only. It embraces both inside and outside salesmen.

Buying and selling employees.—This term is used with reference to agents and brokers and also to assemblers of farm products to include all employees engaged primarily in buying or selling, except salaried corporation officers and executives or managers.

Warehouse employees.—Persons engaged at the warehouse or in the storeroom, such as warehouse supervisors, shipping clerks, stockmen, packers, loaders, etc. Employees handling goods requiring only yard or outside storage are classified as "other" rather than "warehouse." Employees of agents and brokers and of assemblers of farm products who may be engaged at warehouses are classified as "other."

Truck operators and chauffeurs.—This classification includes employees of petroleum bulk stations and terminals engaged principally in delivering gasoline and other petroleum products from tank trucks.

Other employees.—In general, two types of employees are included under this classification: (a) Those performing duties such that they could not properly be classified elsewhere (maintenance employees, charwomen, elevator operators, truck drivers, yard employees, salvage workers, [illegible] employees, etc.) and (b) those performing functions falling within two or more of the classifications described above, no one of which dominated. The latter is particularly true of smaller houses where employees divide their time among several activities.

Pay roll.—Total compensation (salaries, wages, bonuses, and commissions before deductions for Social Security, insurance, dues, etc.) of all employees on a salary or wage basis. Compensation of executives and of salaried corporation officers is included but not withdrawals of proprietor-owners of unincorporated businesses.

Part-time pay roll.—The compensation of part-time employees as defined above.

Expense terms—Operating expenses.—Total operating expenses, sometimes referred to as "overhead expenses," include all expenses incurred during 1939 by reporting establishments. It covers pay roll as well as other expenses in the normal operation of the business, but not the cost of merchandise sold nor does it include compensation of owners of unincorporated businesses. Total expenses are subdivided into administrative, selling, delivery, warehouse, occupancy, and "other" expenses.

Administrative expenses.—This classification includes the general administrative expenses not chargeable directly to any one division. In general, it includes executives' and officers' salaries and expenses; office salaries; superintendency; office supplies and stationery; postage, telephone, and telegraph; professional services (legal and auditing); taxes (local and State), except income and sales taxes; depreciation on furniture and fixtures; dues, subscriptions, and donations; collection expenses; etc.

Selling expenses.—Direct expenses incurred in selling the merchandise are included here. Provision was made for showing delivery expenses, as defined below, separately. Selling expenses include such items as salesmen's salaries, commissions, and bonuses; salesmen's traveling expenses; advertising; and insurance and depreciation on salesmen's automobiles.

Delivery expenses.—Delivery expenses include costs incurred by the reporting establishments in transferring the merchandise from the warehouse or other place of storage to the customer, such as outward freight, express, parcel post, trucking, and insurance on merchandise being delivered.

Warehouse expenses.—Here are included the costs of operating the warehouse or stockroom, such as salaries of warehouse employees, boxing and packing costs, etc.

Occupancy expenses.—This group includes all expenses arising from the use and maintenance of the premises and the store buildings, fixtures, and equipment. It includes maintenance labor, heating, light, power, and water. Where the premises are not owned, rent is included. Respondents owning the premises which they occupied were instructed to include such items as building repairs and supplies, insurance and taxes on building, and depreciation on building. No establishment was included in the analysis of operating expenses unless an amount appeared under this inquiry.

The proper distinction between warehouse and occupancy expenses was difficult to make in many cases. Particularly was this true where all the activities were housed in one building and where it was necessary to allocate expenses. Also, the question of yard storage was somewhat confusing, as some respondents included such costs under war h[illegible] expenses while others considered them as "occupancy." For most kinds of business, however, the amount of overlapping represents but a minor portion of the total for either classification.

Other expenses.—Included here are those operating expenses not classified above, such as interest on bank loans, losses from bad debts, etc.

Miscellaneous terms—Stocks on hand, end of year.—The inventory value, at cost, of merchandise on hand, for sale at the end of the year or nearest inventory date. The amount includes the value of goods owned and out on consignment but not goods of others held on consignment. Inventory figures are given for the end of the year only in table 1, while table 6B presents data for both beginning and end of year.

Receivables. Notes and accounts from trade customers arising from the sale of merchandise and carried on the books of the establishment, even though they may have been pledged as collateral for loans. Notes and accounts sold to finance companies or to banks are not included even though sold "with recourse." Data on receivables are presented in table 6B as of December 31, 1938, and December 31, 1939.

Ownership groups.—This term is used to refer to the number of wholesale establishments under one ownership. In table [illegible] all establishments are classified by ownership groups as follows:

1 establishment only.	15–24 establishments.
2 establishments.	25–49 establishments.
3–5 establishments.	50 and over.
6–9 establishments.	Not stated.
10–14 establishments.

Disclosure of individual operations.—The Census Bureau does not publish statistics which might disclose data for individual establishments or ownership groups. To prevent disclosure it has been necessary to withhold information in many instances. In some cases an "X" is substituted for the amount withheld, while in others the data which could not be shown separately are combined with an indefinite "all other" classification. In general, figures are not given separately for fewer than three establishments or ownership groups.

CHAPTER V.—EXPLANATION OF TABLES

A brief explanation of each of the tables in this volume is given in this chapter. These tables are similar in content and number to corresponding tables in the State and subject reports and releases on wholesale trade.

Table 1—Sales, expenses, personnel, pay roll, and stocks. Types of operation by kinds of business.—In addition to the United States summary, this table is presented for each State, for the District of Columbia, and for each of the 27 leading wholesale trade centers in the United States. A separate report has been issued for each State and for the District of Columbia. The basic data on number of establishments, sales, expenses, personnel, pay roll, and stocks are presented first by types of operation in detail, followed by each of the six major type groups by kinds of business. In the State tables kind-of-business information is restricted to 28 major groups, whereas for the 27 cities and for the District of Columbia it is shown in as much detail as possible without disclosure of individual operations.

The 27 leading wholesale trade centers selected on the basis of their 1935 net sales are arranged alphabetically below:

Atlanta.	Memphis.
Baltimore.	Milwaukee.
Boston.	Minneapolis and St. Paul (combined).
Buffalo.	Newark.
Chicago.	New Orleans.
Cincinnati.	New York.
Cleveland.	Omaha.
Dallas.	Philadelphia.
Denver.	Pittsburgh.
Detroit.	Portland, Oreg.
Houston.	St. Louis.
Indianapolis.	San Francisco.
Kansas City, Mo.	Seattle.
Los Angeles.

Tabulations for these cities appear in their respective State reports, as well as in this volume.

Table 1A.—This table, which is given only for the United States as a whole, presents the basic data on number of establishments, sales, personnel, and pay roll, by kinds of business, for each of 28 detailed types of operation. (Manufacturers' sales branches, with stocks; manufacturers' sales offices, without stocks; and petroleum bulk stations and terminals are analyzed in detail in table 1.)

Table 2—Monthly employment and sex of employees.—This table presents data on the number of active proprietors and firm members of unincorporated businesses, the number of male and female employees, and the number of employees monthly, together with the average for the year. Active proprietors and firm members of unincorporated businesses are not counted as employees. They are shown in this table in order to provide a more complete picture of personnel of wholesale establishments. In a separate report entitled Employment by Months and Employment and Pay Roll for 1 Week, as well as in this volume, table 2 is presented for States, the District of Columbia, and for the 13 cities having more than 500,000 population in 1940. Data for States and cities are shown by 28 kind-of-business groups, all types of operation combined, while for the country as a whole they are given for each type of operation, following which, type-of-operation groups are analyzed by kinds of business in detail. Statistics contained in this table provide a measure of the seasonal variation in employment of wholesale establishments for the year 1939.

Table 3—Analysis of employment and pay roll by occupational groups.—Each wholesale establishment was asked to report the actual employment and pay roll for the week ended October 21, 1939, or, in the case of highly seasonal businesses, for a week of normal employment during the active season. Respondents were requested to classify all employees during the week by occupational groups as executives, office and clerical employees, salesmen, warehousemen, etc. and to report the number and pay roll for the week, full-time and part-time separately, for each classification. Results of this inquiry are presented in table 3. Establishments having no paid employees and those not reporting the analysis for 1 week are not included.

This table, also included in the subject report entitled Employment by Months and Employment and Pay Roll for 1 Week is presented in summary for the United States, for geographic divisions, and for cities having a population of more than 500,000 in 1940. The District of Columbia, included in the South Atlantic Division, is also presented separately.

In the summary tabulation for the country as a whole, the analysis for 1 week is given first by detailed types of operation, followed by each of the six major type groups by kinds of business. For geographic divisions and cities, occupational group data are presented for each major type group by kinds of business. Occupational classifications are shown for each major type group as follows:

Service and Limited-Function Wholesalers and Manufacturers' Sales Branches (with stocks):
- Executives and salaried corporation officers.
- Office and clerical employees.
- Inside selling employees.
- Outside selling employees.
- Warehouse employees.
- All other.

Manufacturers' Sales Offices (without stocks):
- Executives and salaried corporation officers.
- Office and clerical employees.
- Inside selling employees.
- Outside selling employees.
- All other.

Petroleum Bulk Tank Stations and Terminals:
- Executives and salaried corporation officers.
- Office and clerical employees.
- Salesmen.
- Truck operators and chauffeurs.
- All other.

Agents and Brokers and Assemblers:
- Executives and salaried corporation officers.
- Office and clerical employees.
- Buying and selling employees.
- All other.

Table 4—Business size.—Wholesale merchants and, for the trades in which they appear, industrial distributors are classified by size—based upon 1939 sales—in table 4. A maximum of nine sales-size groups, as outlined below, are used in presenting the results:

Group number:	Business-size group
I	$2,000,000 and over.
II	$1,000,000–$1,999,999.
III	$500,000–$999,999.
IV	$300,000–$499,999.
V	$200,000–$299,999.
VI	$100,000–$199,999.
VII	$50,000–$99,999.
VIII	$10,000–$49,999.
IX	Under $10,000.

A size analysis is presented for each of the various kinds of business in which wholesale merchants and industrial distributors appear. For each size classification the number of establishments, sales, total operating expenses, personnel, and pay roll are given. To assist in the use of the data, operating expenses are also expressed as a percentage of net sales. In addition to appearing in this volume, size tabulations are given for each kind of business by geographic divisions in a report entitled Business-Size Groups and an Analysis of Operating Expenses. The number of size brackets used in presenting the results varies with the kind of business according to the number of establishments involved, the objective being to present as much information as possible without disclosing information for any individual concern.

Table 5—Analysis of operating expenses.—This table analyzes total expenses for the various kinds of business of wholesale merchants and industrial distributors by functional divisions. Each respondent whose sales for 1939 amounted to $100,000 or more was requested to analyze his expense accounts and to report administrative, selling, delivery, warehouse, occupancy, and "other" expenses separately. A number of houses whose sales exceeded $100,000 during the year were unable to classify their accounts into the six functional divisions; hence the number of establishments for which the analysis is given in table 5 is somewhat less than the total number for any classification. The table, therefore, presents the number, sales, and operating expense ratio of all establishments with sales of $100,000 or more in addition to the information for those reporting an analysis of expenses.

In general, establishments not reporting all six classes of expenses are omitted from the analysis. Exceptions to this rule were made for those not showing warehouse expenses in trades where yard storage is common, and for those not reporting delivery expenses. Concerns which owned their premises but which failed to report occupancy expenses somewhat comparable to rent are omitted from the table.

In addition to appearing in this volume, data are presented for each of the kinds of business by geographic divisions and for 14 cities in the subject report entitled Business-Size Groups and an Analysis of Operating Expenses. Operating expenses for some of the trades are analyzed in the summary tabulation by size groups as follows:

Group number:	Business-size group
I	$2,000,000 and over.
II	$1,000,000–$1,999,999.
III	$500,000–$999,999.
IV	$300,000–$499,999.
V	$200,000–$299,999.
VI	$100,000–$199,999.

For most trades it was necessary to restrict the amount of detail by size due to the limited number of establishments involved.

Table 6A—Cash-credit analysis of sales.—Sales of service and limited-function wholesalers and of manufacturers' sales branches are analyzed on a cash-credit basis in table 6A. As not all establishments analyzed their business on this basis, the first two columns of the table, taken from table 1, present number and sales for all establishments, including those not analyzed. A comparison of "total of sales analyzed," as given in the third column, with "net sales" in the second column of the table measures the size of the sample. Sales for each of the kinds of business of service and limited-function wholesalers and of manufacturers' sales branches are analyzed to show separately spot cash business, credit of 10 days or less, credit 11 to 30 days, and credit of more than 30 days. In addition to appearing in this volume, data are presented for geographic divisions and cities of more than 500,000 population in a subject report entitled Cash-Credit Analysis of Sales and Receivables and Inventories.

Table 6B—Accounts and notes receivable and stocks on hand, beginning and end of year.—As in table 6A, data are presented for service and limited-function wholesalers and for manufacturers' sales branches, by kinds of business. The information is given for geographic divisions and for 14 cities in the subject report entitled Cash-Credit Analysis of Sales and Receivables and Inventories, as well as in this volume.

Table 7—Distribution of sales, by classes of customers.—Sales of the various classes of wholesale establishments are analyzed in table 7 to show the portions that went to retailers, to household consumers, to industrial users, to other wholesalers, to export intermediaries, and to buyers in foreign countries (direct export business. Not all respondents reported their sales by classes of customers, partly because of inadequate records. In order to provide a measure of the sample studied, the first two columns of the table show the number and sales of all establishments, including those not analyzed. Statistics are presented for the country as a whole, each of the major type groups by kinds of business. A tabulation is also given for each of the cities of more than 500,000 population.

Table 7A—Sales taxes, and sales through agents, brokers, and commission merchants.—United States summary only: Data on sales taxes—local, State, or Federal taxes which were collected from customers over and above the selling price of the reporting establishment and paid by the reporting concern directly to governmental taxing agencies—and sales made through agents, brokers, and commission merchants are presented in table 7A for the country as a whole, type-of-operation groups by kinds of business. Petroleum bulk stations and distributing terminals were not requested to report separately, if any, their sales through agents and brokers.

Table 7B—Sales made by retailers to other retailers. This table, taken from the retail census, shows the value of merchandise sold by retailers to other retailers, or the extent to which retailers engage in semijobbing. Data are given for 12 kind-of-business classifications, by geographic divisions and States.

Table 8—Analysis of sales by commodities.—This table is in two general parts or sections: Table 8A, a summary for the United States, and table 8, geographic divisions and cities. These data also appear in a separate report entitled Commodity Sales.

The summary tabulation is presented by types of operation and kinds of business. In presentation, the type-of-operation classification appears in the heading of the table in bold type, while kind-of-business or trade-group classifications, also in bold type, are centered in the typing field. The detailed kinds of business under each group are given in the stub. Sales for the various kinds of business are analyzed by commodities in as much detail as possible, the commodities appearing in the stub underneath the kind of business to which they relate. The percentage of commodity coverage is given for each trade classification. Commodities are listed in the order in which they appear in the "Standard list of commodities." All major commodity items are numbered in the standard list and throughout the table they are identified accordingly in the "commodity number" column to the left of the stub. Commodities are listed in numerical sequence insofar as they are found in the trade or area. Detailed commodities under a commodity-group classification are not numbered. For any commodity under a kind of business the number of establishments handling it, together with total sales of such establishments and the sales of the particular commodity are given.

For convenience in using the table, two percentage columns are also given. The first (column headed "A") is obtained by dividing the sales of the commodity (column 3) by the sales of establishments selling that commodity (column 2). This percentage measures the importance of any commodity to the total sales of establishments handling it. It is unaffected by establishments not reporting sales of the particular item. The second percentage column, the one designated as "B," measures the importance of any commodity to the total sales for the kind-of-business classification. The figures were obtained by dividing sales of the commodity (column 3) by total sales (also column 3) for the kind of business in the area under consideration.

Commodity classifications.—A complete list of the commodities for which data are presented separately in table 8 is given below. The numbers which appear to the left of the commodity are used in the table for convenience in locating items.

STANDARD LIST OF COMMODITIES

00 Bakery products.
01 Beer and other malt liquors.
02 Butter and cheese.
03 Canned foods:
- Canned fruits.
- Canned vegetables.
- Canned fish and sea foods.

- Drugs, chemicals, and pharmaceuticals.
- Proprietary medicines and toiletries.
- Drugs' sundries.

38 Chemicals, industrial and heavy.
39 Oils, vegetable:
- Cottonseed, linseed, etc.
- Essential oils.

40 Paints and varnishes.
41 Soaps:
- Toilet soaps.
- Other soaps.

42 Other chemical and related products.
43 Wiring supplies and electrical construction materials:
- Interior.
- Outside.
- Lighting fixtures.
- Incandescent lamps.

44 Electrical apparatus and equipment.
45 Radios, appliances, and specialties:
- Radios, parts, and accessories.
- Electric household refrigerators.
- Electric washing machines.
- Other electrical appliances.

46 China, glassware, and crockery.
47 Furniture, wooden and metal:
- Household furniture.
- Office and store furniture, wooden.
- Office and store furniture, metal.

48 House furnishings:
- Carpets and rugs.
- Linoleum, felt base, etc.
- Other house furnishings.

49 Musical instruments and accessories.
50 Hardware:
- Builders' hardware.
- Heavy hardware.
- Bolts, nuts, rivets, and screws.
- Shelf or light hardware.
- Tools and cutlery.
- Wire screening.
- Other.

51 Plumbing, heating, and air conditioning:
- Air-conditioning equipment.
- Gas appliances and supplies.
- Oil burners.
- Oil burner-furnace combinations.
- Pipe fittings, valves, brass goods, etc.
- Plumbing fixtures, equipment, and supplies.
- Stoves, ranges, furnaces, except gas and electric.

52 Sporting goods.
53 Toys and games.
54 Barber and beauty parlor equipment.
55 Farm and garden machinery and equipment:
- Dairy equipment and supplies.
- Farm machinery and equipment.
- Garden equipment and supplies.

56 Industrial equipment and supplies:
- Belting, hose, packing, etc.
- Mechanical power transmission equipment.
- Printing equipment and supplies (except paper).
- Metal-working tools.
- Materials-handling equipment.
- Rope, cordage, and twine.
- Other industrial equipment.

57 Industrial machinery:
- Construction machinery (except road-building).
- Road-building machinery.
- Machine tools (power-driven)
- Mining, quarrying, etc.
- Oil-well and oil-refining.
- Power-plant machinery (except electrical).
- Printing machinery.
- Textile machinery.
- Other industrial machinery.

58 Office and store equipment and supplies:
- Office machines and equipment.
- Garage and filling-station equipment.
- Store machines.
- Store fixtures and equipment.

59 Railroad equipment and supplies.

60 Dental equipment and supplies.

61 Surgical and hospital equipment.

62 Building metal work:
- Fire escapes, elevator cages, etc.
- Ventilators and air-conditioning ducts.
- Metal roofing and siding.
- Metal storage tanks, etc.
- Steel houses and steel garages.
- Fabricated structural work.
- Metal lath.
- Other building metal work.

63 Copper and products.

64 Iron and steel products (unfinished):
- Pig iron.
- Scrap iron and steel.
- Ingots, blooms, billets, and slabs.
- Sheet and tin-plate bars.
- Wire rods.
- Scrap.
- Pipe, castings and foundry products.
- Forgings.
- Other.

65 Iron and steel products (flat):
- Plates.
- Strip—hot-rolled.
- Strip—cold-rolled.
- Sheets—continuous mill.
- Sheets—hand mill.
- Sheets—galvanized or otherwise coated.
- Black plate.
- Tin plate.
- Other.

66 Iron and steel wire and wire products:
- Woven wire fence.
- Fence posts and fittings.
- Barbed and twisted wire.
- Nails (including staples and tacks).
- Wire rope and cable except insulated.
- Strand, galvanized.
- Reinforcement mesh.
- Drawn wire.
- Other.

67 Iron and steel finished products other than flat and wire:
- Plates, tie plates, splice bars, etc.
- Bars and small shapes except reinforcing.
- Concrete reinforcing bars, all types.
- Structural shapes.
- Piling and bearing piles.
- Cast-iron pipe.
- Steel pipe.
- Seamless steel tubing.
- Other.

68 Lead (metallic) and zinc.

69 Other nonferrous metals (except precious).

70 Brick, tile, and terra cotta.

71 Building stone, slate, and concrete products.

72 Cement, lime, plaster, and stucco.

73 Coal and coke:
- Anthracite.
- Bituminous.
- Coke.

74 Crude nonmetallic minerals and products.

75 Glass—sheet and containers:
- Sheet glass.
- Glass containers.

76 Petroleum and its products:
- Crude oil.
- Lubricants, automotive.
- Lubricants, other than automotive.

76 Petroleum and its products—Con.
- Gasoline and naphthas.
- Light fuel oils.
- Other fuel oils.
- Kerosene.
- Other.

77 Sand, gravel, and crushed stone.

78 Books, magazines, and other printed material.

79 Logs, ties, pulpwood, etc.

80 Lumber—rough, dressed, and finished.

81 Paper and products (except stationery and wallpaper):
- Printing and writing papers.
- Cardboard and paperboard.
- Wrapping or coarse paper.
- Paper products such as bags, boxes, cups, dishes, etc.

82 Wallpaper.

83 Stationery and supplies:
- Commercial stationery.
- Social stationery.

84 Planing-mill products.

85 Aircraft and parts:
- Craft, heavier than air.
- Craft, lighter than air.
- Equipment and supplies.

86 Boats—motor, sail, and steam.

87 Building materials (except as listed).

88 Cameras and supplies.

89 Tobacco products:
- Cigars.
- Cigarettes.
- Other tobacco products.

90 Fertilizer and fertilizer materials.

91 Jewelry, silverware, etc.:
- Clocks and watches.
- Jewelry.
- Precious stones and metals.
- Silverware and plated ware.

92 Junk and scrap (except iron):
- Scrap metals (except iron).
- Waste rags.
- Waste rubber.
- Other waste (paper, bottles, boxes, etc.

93 Leather and cut stock.

94 Luggage, saddlery, harness, etc.

95 Motion picture film rentals.

96 Optical goods (except photographic).

97 Rubber, crude.

98 Second-hand merchandise.

99 Miscellaneous commodities.

Service receipts.

Use of table 8.—The commodity analysis of sales is designed to show what commodities are handled in the various lines of trade and in what trades any particular commodity is found. For example, it shows what commodities, and in what amounts, tobacco wholesalers normally handle other than cigars, cigarettes, and other tobacco products. It also shows by what other trades—such as drugs, groceries, confectionery, etc. tobacco products are sold and the importance of the tobacco department.

One of the principal objectives of these statistics is to give a clearer understanding of what commodities are sold in a given line of business. From them, wholesalers can ascertain what lines of commodities are carried by other wholesalers classified like themselves and what portion these commodities constitute of the total sales of the houses handling them. Commodity data also show wholesalers how important each item is to the trade as a whole, thus providing valuable information on lines of merchandise which might well be added or eliminated.

Manufacturers may glean from these statistics information on the total wholesale volume of a particular commodity, information that affords a basis for comparing their distribution with the total for any area or for the country as a whole, thus giving a concrete idea of their relative share of the market. Also, the commodity information assists in working out a more scientific method of distribution since it provides facts on commodity outlets both with respect to the type of operation and to trade groups which handle the various items. It is possible for manufacturers of electrical goods, for example, to determine what classes of wholesalers sell electrical goods, where such wholesalers are located, and how important such commodities are to their business.

Limitations of commodity data.—In using the commodity data it should be remembered that not all establishments were able to provide the desired information; hence for most classifications, reported sales of a given commodity are less than the actual sales would have been had the sales of all establishments been analyzed. The commodity coverage ratio indicates the percentage of coverage and may be used in projecting totals.

Another source of weakness in the commodity tabulation may be found in the departmental set-up of reporting concerns. Respondents frequently are inclined to report "department sales" as commodity sales. Grocery wholesalers, for example, may include miscellaneous house furnishings with "all other commodities" because no separate house furnishings department is maintained. Likewise, the term "notions" is variously used by wholesale establishments. In short, reported sales of a commodity in a trade where it is not normally found—a trade where a separate department is rarely set up—are understated as a rule, while for trades where it constitutes a substantial portion of the total, sales are likely to be overstated.

The commodities listed in table 8 for a given trade are not to be considered as the only ones sold by establishments classified in the trade. As stated above, some commodities were not reported separately due to the prevailing departmental set-up. Furthermore, data are not shown separately in the table, as a rule, for those numbered items which represented less than one-tenth of 1 percent of total sales for the trade classification. With these limitations in mind, it is believed that the tables furnish very reliable data for commodities commonly handled in a trade.

Table 9—Legal form of organization. Table 9 presents basic data on number of establishments, sales, expenses, personnel, pay roll, and stocks, separately, for individual proprietorships, partnerships, corporations, and "other" or miscellaneous forms of organization. In the summary the data are presented for the six type-of-operation groups. Legal form data are given for each State in a special release entitled "Wholesale Trade, 1939, Legal Form of Organization," as well as in this volume.

Table 10—Number of establishments under one ownership.—Wholesale trade is studied in table 10 according to the number of establishments under one ownership (in summary for the United States only). All ownerships are grouped into the following classifications: 1 wholesale establishment only; 2 wholesale establishments; 3–5; 6–9; 10–14; 15–24; 25–49; and 50 or more establishments under one ownership. For each group the number of establishments, sales, personnel, pay roll, and inventories are given. Data are presented for the country as a whole, by types of operation.

Table 11—Age of establishment and year acquired by present owner (in summary for the United States only). In table 11 wholesale establishments are classified according to the year in which the business was established and the year in which it came under present ownership. For each age group the following 1939 information is shown: Number of establishments, sales, number of active proprietors, employees, and pay roll.

Table 12—Cities.—Gives data on number of establishments, sales, personnel, and pay roll for all cities (except selected cities) of 20,000 population or more. It is divided into two parts, 12A and 12B.

Table 12A is for cities of 50,000 population or more and presents the basic data by type-of-operation groups, each type group analyzed by kinds of business.

Table 12B presents data for cities of 20,000 to 50,000 population. Due to the small number of establishments in most cities it was necessary to restrict the amount of detail; hence all types of operation are combined in presenting the data by kinds of business.

Table 13—Counties.—This table gives the basic data on number of establishments, sales, personnel, and pay roll in terms of a one-line total for each county, for each city of 5,000 population or more within the county, and for the remainder of the county.
